A Dictionary of Science, Literature, & Art William Thomas Brande,George William Cox,1875 From Grammar to Science Victor H. Yngve,1996-12-19 Although efforts have been under way for the past two centuries to treat language scientifically linguists and others who work with language speech or communication have not found an adequate scientific foundation in current linguistic theory Many of the difficulties are caused by longstanding confusions between the logical domain of science and grammar and the physical domain of sound waves and the people who speak and understand In this book therefore the last impediments of tradition the ancient semiotic grammatical foundations of linguistics are set aside We move into the physical domain where theories and hypotheses can be tested against observations of the physical reality Here new foundations are laid that are fully consonant with modern science as practiced in physics chemistry and biology On these foundations is built a structure of testable specific dynamic causal laws of communicative behavior that provides support for treating previously recalcitrant context dependent semantic pragmatic interactive rhetorical and literary phenomena The central role of context in the foundations of the theory provides the insights of scientific lawfulness while still honoring the particularity of situations celebrated in the humanities

Catalogue ... Illinois State University,1928 The Language of Science M.A.K. Halliday,2004-06-20 The fifth volume of the collected works of Professor M A K Halliday The Language of Science explores the semantic character of scientific discourse The chapters are organized into two sections one being on grammatical metaphor the other dealing with scientific English In language there exists the potential for constructing new discourses among them scientific discourse The volume opens with a new work from Professor Halliday addressing the question How big is a language It is a question that goes to the heart of the paradigmatic complexity or meaning potential that characterizes language      Bulletin University of Illinois (Urbana-Champaign campus).
