The Grammar of Conducting Max Rudolf, 1950 The Oxford Handbook of Choral Pedagogy Frank Abrahams, Paul D. Head, 2017-02-01 As the landscape of choral education changes disrupted by Glee YouTube and increasingly cheap audio production software teachers of choral conducting need current research in the field that charts scholarly paths through contemporary debates and sets an agenda for new critical thought and practice Where in the digitizing world is the field of choral pedagogy moving Editor Frank Abrahams and Paul D Head both experienced choral conductors and teachers offer here a comprehensive handbook of newly commissioned chapters that provide key scholarly critical perspectives on teaching and learning in the field of choral music written by academic scholars and researchers in tandem with active choral conductors As chapters in this book demonstrate choral pedagogy encompasses everything from conductors gestures to the administrative management of the choir The contributors to The Oxford Handbook of Choral Pedagogy address the full range of issues in contemporary choral pedagogy from repertoire to voice science to the social and political aspects of choral singing They also cover the construction of a choral singer's personal identity the gendering of choral ensembles social justice in choral education and the role of the choral art in society more generally Included scholarship focuses on both the United States and international perspectives in five sections that address traditional paradigms of the field and challenges to them critical case studies on teaching and conducting specific populations such as international school or barbershop choirs the pedagogical functions of repertoire teaching as a way to construct identity and new scholarly methodologies in pedagogy and the voice

The Grammar of Conducting Max Rudolf, 1969 Choral Conducting and the Construction of Meaning Liz Garnett, 2017-07-05 It is a truism in teaching choral conducting that the director should look like s/he wishes the choir to sound The conductor's physical demeanour has a direct effect on how the choir sings at a level that is largely unconscious and involuntary It is also a matter of simple observation that different choral traditions exhibit not only different styles of vocal production and delivery but also different gestural vocabularies which are shared not only between conductors within that tradition but also with the singers It is as possible to distinguish a gospel choir from a barbershop chorus or a cathedral choir by visual cues alone as it is simply by listening But how can these forms of physical communication be explained Do they belong to a pre-cultural realm of primate social bonding or do they rely on the context and conventions of a particular choral culture Is body language an inherent part of musical performance styles or does it come afterwards in response to music At a practical level to what extent can a practitioner from one tradition mandate an approach as good practice and to what extent can another refuse it on the grounds that we don't do it that way This book explores these questions at both theoretical and practical levels It examines textual and ethnographic sources and draws on theories from critical musicology and nonverbal communication studies to analyse them By comparing a variety of choral traditions it investigates the extent to which the connections between conductor demeanour and choral sound operate at a general level and in what ways they are constructed within a specific idiom Its findings will be of interest both to those engaged in the study of music as a cultural practice and to practitioners involved in a choral conducting context that increasingly demands fluency in a variety of styles tips on cueing music to dialogue and staging determining incidental music and underscoring making musical adjustments and revisions in rehearsal and adjusting style and tempo to performers needs A key theme of the book is effective collaboration with other professionals from the production team to the creative team to the performers themselves all grounded in Church's real world experience with professional amateur and even student performances He concludes with a look at music direction as a career offering invaluable advice on how the enterprising music director can find work and gain standing in the field

Rehearsing John F. Colson, 2015-07-09 Following on the heels of his Conducting and Rehearsing the Instrumental Music Ensemble John F Colson takes students to the next level in conducting practice with Rehearsing Critical Connections for the Instrumental Music Conductor Colson draws together the critical connections for those seeking to become fully capable and self assured instrumental music conductors As he argues too often conductor training programs treat the problems and challenges of the rehearsal perhaps the single most critical element in any effort to achieve competency as a conductor as secondary Colson supplies the missing link for conductors looking for advice that allows them to complete their training for reaching complete competency as a conductor He demonstrates throughout the specific connections that the advanced conductor must know and regularly employ connections that few if any other works on the art of conducting address or bring together One connection for example illustrates the joining of music imagery inner singing and conducting technique to score study Throughout these connections describe the nitty gritty of what it really takes to stand up in front of an instrumental music ensemble and successfully rehearse in order to achieve its highest performance level Also Colson argues and demonstrates the pitfalls of the commonly mistaken assumption among instrumental music conductors that score study alone is sufficient to prepare them for the rehearsal process This grave error is regularly belied by the fact that a number of other steps precede the actual rehearsal process from the use of instrumental pedagogy during the rehearsal process to teaching through performance concepts Colson's work addresses the entire rehearsing process thoroughly and authoritatively
