Goodman, 2009-09-15 How Main Street was hit by and might recover from the financial crisis by The New York Times's national economics correspondent When the financial crisis struck in 2008 Main Street felt the blow just as hard as Wall Street The New York Times national economics correspondent Peter S Goodman takes us behind the headlines and exposes how the flow of capital from Asia and Silicon Valley to the suburbs of the housing bubble perverted America's economy He follows a real estate entrepreneur who sees endless opportunity in the underdeveloped lots of Florida until the mortgages for them collapse And he watches as an Oakland California based deliveryman unable to land a job in the biotech industry slides into unemployment and a homeless shelter As Goodman shows for two decades Americans binged on imports and easy credit a spending spree abetted by ever increasing home values and then the bill came due Yet even in a new environment of thrift and pullback Goodman argues that economic adaptation is possible through new industries and new safety nets His tour of new businesses in Michigan Iowa South Carolina and elsewhere and his clear eyed analysis point the way to the economic promises and risks America now faces Waveform Politics; A War to End Democide Gary Clifford Gibson, 2007-05 Why did the war to free Iraq from Saddam Hussein occur Was the conflict a moral war to end a democide during the sanctions era and to build a democracy The national debate and the author's essays continued through the war and onto the era of a troubled peace and national elections Organizing the Breathless Robert E. Botsch, 2014-07-15 In the 1970s textile workers joined forces with a small band of grassroots activists and organizers and challenged the most powerful industrial interest in the heart of Dixie the cotton textile manufacturers They located disabled workers and organized them employing the full range of interest group tactics and they creatively engaged in legislative administrative and judicial lobbying as well as protest actions with remarkable success Robert E Botsch recounts the history of the Brown Lung Association and details the interaction of the major participants in the rise and ultimately the failure of the organization A once all powerful and politically dominant textile industry lost its public relations battle as it lost business to cheaper labor markets abroad Medical researchers policy makers and regulators had difficulty communicating State government regulations often cost workers their health and their means of support Organizers allowed their followers to become too dependent on their ability to raise grant monies Working class southerners found energy and courage in the face of age and sickness but were incapable of the self discipline necessary for successful long term organization Organizing the Breathless reveals the dramatic negative impact of the Reagan years on the disabled workers and their organization and draws lessons from the experience of other interest groups Botsch examines central issues the value of membership incentives the complexities of relationships with organizers and the perennial question of the relative importance of organization versus protest This book will interest political scientists and
