Half Brain Fables And Figs In Paradise:

Half-Brain Fables and Figs in Paradise Jacques M. Chevalier, 2002-10-17 Half Brain Fables and Figs in Paradise starts the trilogy on the lateral plane and explores the tendency of each hemisphere to specialize but also to complement or supplement the other hemisphere Brain and sign processing is thus shown to involve bimodal weavings or reticles of right hemispheric similarities and left hemispheric differences Chevalier goes on to illustrate how whole brain connectivity generates the crisscrossings of oppositions and metaphors in language using symbolically rich material ranging from Western naming practices to expressions of ethnobotany in the bible figs in Genesis poetry Longfellow's Evangeline and native Mexican mythology Three major philosophical implications follow from Chevalier's theoretic perspective on the weavings of signs and synapse First the integrative concept of nervous sign processing should be substituted for models of the brain and the intellect that separate biology from mental and cultural activity The subject matter of semiosis is both physical and communicational Second sign reticles are orderly and chaotic at the same time They are subject to patterns of convergence but also to lines of divergence that defy simple modeling whether analytical or dialectical Third sign events are governed by the principle of conferencing not referencing They do not refer to things or thoughts signified through representational means Rather they confer meaning through signaptic conversations reticles of fine lines evolving in language and in neural cells alike

Corpus and the Cortex Jacques M. Chevalier, 2002-10-17 Chevalier shows how the attentions and inhibitions of affect and norm are best understood at the crossroads of several disciplines including neuropsychology semiotics and philosophy He delves into these linkages with an emphasis on the reciprocal concessions between the pleasure principle and the teachings of normative language moral rational These mutual allowances of sentiment and judgment go far beyond cognitive models of the mind They also bridge the Freudian and Kantian gap between self enjoyment and morality Far from being constantly in struggle The Corpus and the Cortex shows that norms and infractions are the warps and wefts of a single neurosemiotic fabric Symbolic analyses illustrating these intriguing manifestations of brain language and culture range from personal anecdotes to cultural identity rhetoric animal farm imagery shoe fetishism and body piercing The 3 D Mind 2 presents these analyses against the background of theories and debates concerning concepts of identity construction metaphor rhetoric simulation consciousness morality and eroticism
