Generosity and Human Creativity David Brown, 2017-02-22 Partly in a desire to defend divine freedom and partly because it is seen as the only way of preserving a distinctive voice for theology much contemporary theology has artificially restricted revelation and religious experience effectively cutting off those who find God beyond the walls of the Church Against this tendency David Brown argues for divine generosity and a broader vision of reality that sees God deploying symbols literary visual and sacramental as a means of mediating between the divine world and our own material existence A sustained argument for divine interaction and more specifically the ways in which God speaks in the wider imaginative world this volume calls for a careful listening exercise since symbols are richer and more open in their possibilities than their users often suppose Not only is this true of the imagery of Scripture even inanimate objects like buildings or hostile but creative artists can have important things to say to the believing Christian An ideal introduction that also moves the conversation forward this volume addresses foundations the multivalent power of symbols artists as theologians and meaning in religious architecture
