Johann Heinrich Dannecker:

"Rome, Travel and the Sculpture Capital, c.1770-1825" Tomas Macsotay, 2017-07-05 The world that shaped Europe's first national sculptor celebrities from Schadow to David d'Angers from Flaxman to Gibson from Canova to Thorvaldsen was the city of Rome. Until around 1800 the Holy See effectively served as Europe's cultural capital and Roman sculptors found themselves at the intersection of the Italian marble trade, Grand Tour expenditure, the cult of the classical male nude and the Enlightenment republic of letters. Two sets of visitors to Rome, the David circle and the British traveler, have tended to dominate Rome's image as an open artistic hub while the lively community of sculptors of mixed origins has not been awarded similar attention. Rome, Travel and the Sculpture Capital, c. 1770-1825 is the first study to piece together the labyrinthine sculptors' world of Rome between 1770 and 1825. The volume sheds new light on the links connecting Neo-classicism, sculpture, collecting, Enlightenment aesthetics, studio culture and queer studies. The collection offers ideal introductory reading on sculpture and Rome around 1800 but its combination of provocative perspectives is sure to appeal to a readership interested in understanding a modernized Europe's overwhelmingly transnational desire for Neo-classical Roman sculpture. Sculpture, Sexuality and History Jana Funke, Jen Grove, 2019-01-04 This book investigates the wide-ranging connections between sculpture, sexuality and history in Western culture from the eighteenth century to the present. Sculpture has offered a privileged site for the articulation of sexual experience and the formation of sexual knowledge. As historical objects, sculptures also draw attention to the different ways in which knowledge about sexuality is facilitated through an engagement with the past. Bringing together contributors from across disciplines including art history, classics, film studies, gender studies, history, literary studies, museum studies, queer theory and reception studies, the volume presents original readings of sculptural art in relation to antiquarianism, aesthetics, collecting, cultures, censorship and obscenity, psychoanalysis, sexology and the experience and regulation of museum spaces. It examines how sculptural encounters were imagined and articulated in literature, painting, film and science. As a whole, the book opens up a new understanding of the ways in which sculptures as real or imagined objects have fundamentally shaped approaches to and receptions of the past in relation to sex, gender and sexuality. Chapters 8 and 10 of this book are available open access under a CC BY 4.0 license at link.springer.com. *Teils. Pohlsander, 2008 No century in modern European history has built monuments with more enthusiasm than the 19th. Of the hundreds of monuments erected, those which sprang from a nation-wide initiative and addressed themselves to a nation rather than part of a nation we may call national monuments Nelson's Column in London or the Arc de Triomphe in Paris are obvious examples In Germany the 19th century witnessed a veritable flood of monuments many of which rank as national monuments These reflected and contributed to a developing sense of national identity and the search for national unity they also document an unsuccessful effort to create a genuinely German style They constitute a historical record quite apart from aesthetic appeal or ideological message As this historical record is examined German national monuments of the 19th century are described and interpreted against the background of the nationalism which gave birth to them The Enlightened Eye, 2015-06-29 Poets painters philosophers and scientists alike debated new ways of thinking about visual culture in the long eighteenth century The essays in The Enlightened Eye Goethe and Visual Culture demonstrate the extent to which Goethe advanced this discourse in virtually all disciplines The concept of visuality becomes a constitutive moment in a productive relationship between the verbal and visual arts with far reaching implications for the formation of bourgeois identity pedagogy and culture From a variety of theoretical perspectives the contributors to this volume examine the interconnections between aesthetic and scientific fields of inquiry involved in Goethe's visual identity By locating Goethe's position in the examination of visual culture both established and emerging scholars analyze the degree to which visual aesthetics determined the cultural production of both the German speaking world and the broader European context The contributions analyze the production presentation and consumption of visual culture defined broadly as painting sculpture theater and scientific practice The Enlightened Eye promises to invest new energy and insight into the discussion among literary scholars art historians and cultural theorists about many aspects of visual culture in the Age of Goethe A History
