Fishing For A Major:

Elasmobranch Biodiversity, Conservation and Management Sarah L. Fowler, Tim M. Reed, Frances Dipper, 2002 The Darwin Elasmobranch Biodiversity Conservation and Management project in Sabah held a three day international seminar that included a one day workshop in order to highlight freshwater and coastal elasmobranch conservation issues in the region and worldwide to disseminate the result of the project to other Malaysian states and countries and to raise awareness of the importance of considering aspects of elasmobranch biodiversity in the context of nature conservation commercial fisheries management and for subsistence fishing communities These proceedings contain numerous peer reviewed papers originally presented at the seminar which cover a wide range of topics with particular reference to species from freshwater and estuarine habitats The workshop served to develop recommendations concerning the future prospects of elasmobranch fisheries biodiversity conservation and management This paper records those conclusions which highlight the importance of elasmobranchs as top marine predators and keystone species noting that permanent damage to shark and ray populations are likely to have serious and unexpected negative consequences for commercial and subsistence yields of other important fish stocks

Big, Bold and Blue James Fitzsimons, Geoff Wescott, 2016-07-01 The world's oceans cover about 70% of our planet To safeguard the delicate ecological and environmental functions of the oceans and their remarkable biodiversity networks of marine protected areas are being created In some of these areas human activity is restricted to non exploitative activities and in others it is managed in a sustainable way Australia is at the forefront of marine conservation with one of the largest systems of marine protected areas in the world Big Bold and Blue Lessons from Australia's Marine Protected Areas captures Australia's experience sharing important lessons from the Great Barrier Reef and many other extraordinary marine protected areas It presents real world examples leading academic research perspectives on government policy and information from indigenous sea country management non governmental organisations and commercial and recreational fishing sectors The lessons learnt during the rapid expansion of Australia's marine protected areas both positive and negative will aid and advise other nations in their own marine conservation efforts The book is ideal reading for marine planners and managers across the globe academic institutions where research on marine environments occur government agencies across the world implementing and creating policy around MPA development non government organisations involved in lobbying for MPA expansion and fisheries agencies and industry stakeholders
