fundamental to our understanding of responsibility in family life To whom and to what ends are family members responsible Is responsibility primarily a matter of care Can we fulfil our family responsibilities by paying those to whom we owe responsibility Or by paying others to fulfil our caring obligations for us In each of these circumstances the chapters in this collection explore what it means to have family responsibilities what constitutes an adequate performance of such responsibilities and the point at which the state intervenes At the heart of this collection is an interest in the way in which the changing family affects people s perception and exercise their family responsibilities and how the law attempts to regulate and understand those responsibilities The essays range across intact and separated or fragmented families from lone and shared parenting in single homes to caring across households and even across international boundaries to reflect on the actual caring responsibilities of family members and on the fulfilment of financial responsibilities in families This collection seeks to advance our understanding of the attempts of the law and its limits in regulating the responsibilities which family members take for each other

The Teaching of Criminal Law Kris Gledhill,Ben Livings,2016-08-19 The Teaching of Criminal Law provides the first considered discussion of the pedagogy that should inform the teaching of criminal law It originates from a survey of criminal law courses in different parts of the English speaking world which showed significant similarity across countries and over time It also showed that many aspects of substantive law are neglected This prompted the question of whether any real consideration had been given to criminal law course design This book seeks to provide a critical mass of thought on how to secure an understanding of substantive criminal law by examining the course content that best illustrates the thought process of a criminal lawyer by presenting innovative approaches for securing active learning by students and by demonstrating how criminal law can secure other worthwhile graduate attributes by introducing wider contexts This edited collection brings together contributions from academic teachers of criminal law from Australia New Zealand the United Kingdom and Ireland who have considered issues of course design and often implemented them Together they examine several innovative approaches to the teaching of criminal law that have been adopted in a number of law schools around the world both in teaching methodology and substantive content The authors offer numerous suggestions for the design of a criminal law course that will ensure students gain useful insights into criminal law and its role in society

This book helps fill the gap in research into criminal law pedagogy and demonstrates that there are alternative ways of delivering this core part of the law degree As such this book will be of key interest to researchers academics and lecturers in the fields of criminal law pedagogy and teaching methods 100 Years of the Infanticide Act Karen Brennan, Emma Milne, 2023-10-19 This book provides the first comprehensive and detailed analysis of the Infanticide Act and its impact in England and Wales and around the world It is 100 years since an Infanticide Act was first passed in England and Wales The statute re enacted in 1938 allows for leniency to be given to women who kill their infants within the first year of life This legislation is unique and controversial it creates a specific offence and defence that is available only to women who kill their biological infants Men and other carers are not able to avail of the special mitigation provided by the Act nor are women who kill older children The collection brings together leading experts in the field to offer important insights into the history of the law how it works today the impact and legacy of the statute and potential futures of infanticide laws around the world Contributors consider the Act in practice in England and Wales the ways it has been portrayed in the British media and justifications for and criticisms of the provision of special treatment for women who kill their infants within a year of birth It also looks at the criminal justice responses to infanticide in other jurisdictions such as Australia Ireland Sweden and the United States of America Inequality, Crime, And Social Control George S Bridges, 2018-10-08 This book brings together the most recent advances in theory and research on the relationship between social inequality and the control of criminal behavior exploring the ways in which social class race gender and age shape societal and organizational responses to crime Is Killing Wrong? Mark Cooney, 2009-10-07 Thou shalt not kill is arguably the most basic moral and legal principle in any society Yet while some killers are pilloried and punished others are absolved and acquitted and still others are lauded and lionized Why The traditional answer is that how killers are treated depends on the nature of their killing whether it was aggressive or defensive intentional or accidental But those factors cannot explain the enormous variation in legal officials and citizens responses to real life homicides Cooney argues that a radically new style of thought pure sociology can Conceived by the sociologist Donald Black pure sociology makes no reference to psychology to any single person s intent or even to individuals as such Instead pure sociology explains behavior in terms of its social geometry its location and direction in a multidimensional social space Is Killing Wrong provides the most comprehensive assessment of pure sociology yet attempted Drawing on data from well over one hundred societies including the modern day United States it represents the most thorough account yet of case level social control or the response to conduct defined as wrong In doing so it demonstrates that the law and morality of homicide are neither universal nor relative but geometrical as predicted by Black s theory Cultural Ecstasies Ilana Mountian, 2013 In this important contribution to the study of drugs and addiction Ilana Mountian critically analyses discourses surrounding drugs drug treatment and drug prevention and develops alternative conceptual and methodological perspectives to current psychological approaches to drug use Demystifying Power,

Crime and Social Harm David Gordon Scott, Joe Sim, 2023-12-29 This collection revisits Steven Box's book Power Crime and Mystification published in 1983 and considers its relevance forty years on. It introduces the critical analysis developed by Box which examined corporate crime, police crime, rape and sexual assault and female crime and analyses the continuities and discontinuities since 1983 in relation to crime, the state and the exercise/mystification of power. The book explores the ways in which we can see his influence nationally and internationally on critical criminological, zemiological and abolitionist writings today. It asks how can these perspectives be applied to a critical analysis of contemporary state authoritarianism and the criminal injustice that this authoritarianism generates. Additionally, how can Box's concepts shine a critical light on contemporary social harms that were not covered in the original book. The collection provides a toolkit for students and academics to critically analyse the issues around crime, social harm, power, powerlessness, truth, mystification, criminal injustice, social justice as well as historical and contemporary sites of resistance confronting the exercise of state power. Gendered Responses to Male Offending in Barbados

Corin Bailey, 2020-04-07 It is generally accepted that men commit more crimes than women. The widespread acceptance of this view is based primarily on the number of convictions with most jurisdictions reporting considerably fewer incarcerated women/girls than men/boys. This manuscript argues, however, that decisions made by the various stakeholders that play a role in the incarceration of men are inherently gendered. These decisions are based on patriarchal perceptions and stereotypes related to the familial roles of men and women and by extension their motivations for offending. Few studies have sought to explore the nature of these perceptions and the effect these may have on incarceration patterns. Indeed, this form of inquiry remains absent from the research agenda of Caribbean criminologists. Using qualitative data from Barbados, this book analyses the extent to which these factors are taken into consideration not only by the police and members of the judiciary but by examining the gendered decisions made by shop managers and proprietors in cases involving shoplifting. It seeks to analyse the extent to which these factors are taken into consideration before incidents reach the justice system. Critically, this book seeks also to juxtapose these assumptions against testimony from men incarcerated at Her Majesty's Prison. The large proportion of males in Caribbean prisons when compared to their female counterparts necessitates an investigation into the factors that may contribute to differential treatment as they move through the justice system. Using data from Barbados, the present study seeks to fill this need. Manifest Madness Arlie

Loughnan, 2012-04-19 Bringing together previously disparate discussions on criminal responsibility from law, psychology and philosophy, this book provides a close study of mental incapacity defences, tracing their development through historical cases to the modern era.
