Living In The Appalachian Forest True Tales Of Sustainable Forestry:

Living in the Appalachian Forest Chris Bolgiano, 2002 A thought provoking look at how man and nature co exist somewhat uneasily within the Appalachian Forest the world s most diverse temperate woodlands 80 percent of which is privately owned by the ancestors of homesteaders outsiders who have bought large and small tracts absentee landlords and landowners private groups and institutions and giant corporations Interviews with a diverse group of landowners a horse logger a selective cutter a ginseng grower a clear cutter a forest steward a summer camp owner and others and the author s own experiences as a landowner illustrate the private forest s past present and future Appalachian Winter Marcia Bonta, 2011-12-01 Winter is the season that most tests our mettle There are the obvious challenges of the weather freezing rain wind chill deep snow dangerous ice but also the psychological burdens of waiting for spring and the enduring often false starts that accompany its eventual return On the surface perhaps winter might seem an odd season for a nature book but there is plenty of beauty and life in the woods if only we know where to look The stark white landscape sparkles in the sunshine and glows beneath the moon on crisp clear nights the opening up of the forest makes it easy to see long distances birds some of which can be easily seen only in winter flock to feeders and animals even those that should be hibernating make surprise visits from time to time Appalachian Winter offers acclaimed naturalist Marcia Bonta s view of one season as experienced on and around her 650 acre home on the westernmost ridge of the hill and valley landscape that dominates central Pennsylvania Written in the style of a journal each day s entry focuses on her walks and rambles through the woods and fields that she has known and loved for over thirty years Along the way she discovers a long eared owl in a dense stand of conifers tracks a bear through an early December snowfall explains the life and ecological niche of the red backed vole and examines the recent arrival of an Asian ladybug These are but a few of the tidbits sprinkled throughout the book interwoven with the human stories of Bonta s family as well as the highway builders and shopping mall developers that threaten the idyllic peacefulness of her mountain This is the fourth and final volume of Bonta s seasonal meditations on the natural history of the northern Appalachian Mountains Her gentle charming accounts of changing weather and of the struggles faced by plants animals and insects breathe new warmth into the coldest months of the year Eastern Cougar Chris Bolgiano, Jerry Roberts, 2005-07-27 The first book to cover the history and current status of the mysterious big cat Blue Ridge Commons Kathryn Newfont, 2012 In the late twentieth century residents of the Blue Ridge mountains in western North Carolina fiercely resisted certain environmental efforts even while launching aggressive initiatives of their own Kathryn Newfont provides context for those events by examining the environmental history of this region over the course of three hundred years identifying what she calls commons environmentalism a cultural strain of conservation in American history that has gone largely unexplored Efforts in the 1970s to expand federal wilderness areas in the Pisgah and Nantahala national forests generated strong opposition For many mountain residents the idea of unspoiled wilderness seemed economically unsound historically dishonest and elitist Newfont shows that local people's sense of commons environmentalism required access to the forests that they viewed as semipublic places for hunting fishing and working Policies that removed large tracts from use were perceived as enclosure and resisted Incorporating deep archival work and years of interviews and conversations with Appalachian residents Blue Ridge Commons reveals a tradition of people building robust forest protection movements on their own terms p 4 of cover America's Natural Places Stacy S.
