Flash Frames Twelve Years Reporting Belfast Politics From Blackstaff:

The Politics of Memoir and the Northern Ireland Conflict Stephen Hopkins, 2013 This book examines memoir writing by many of the key political actors in the Northern Irish Troubles 1969-1998 and argues that memoir has been a neglected dimension of the study of the legacies of the violent conflict It investigates these sources in the context of ongoing disputes over how to interpret Northern Ireland's recent past A careful reading of these memoirs can provide insights into the lived experience and retrospective judgments of some of the main protagonists of the conflict The period of relative peace rests upon an uneasy calm in Northern Ireland Many people continue to inhabit contested ideological territories and in their strategies for shaping the narrative telling of the conflict key individuals within the Protestant Unionist and Catholic Irish Nationalist communities can appear locked into exclusive and self-justifying discourses In such circumstances while some memoirists have been genuinely self-critical many others have utilised a post-conflict language of societal Victims and Perpetrators of Terrorism Orla Lynch, Javier Argomaniz, 2017-11-09 This volume examines how both victims and perpetrators of terrorism are relevant to our understanding of political violence While the perpetrators of political violence have been the subject of significant academic research victims of terrorism and political violence have rarely featured in this landscape In an effort to capture the vast complexity of terrorism and to widen the scope of the agenda that informs terrorism research this book presents a series of analyses that examines the role of the perpetrators the experience of the victims the public and media perceptions of both and given the inherent intricacy of the phenomenon how we might think about engaging with perpetrators in an effort to prevent further violence By considering the role of the many actors who are central to our understanding and framing of terrorism and political violence this book highlights the need to focus on how the interactivity of individuals and contexts have implications for the emergence maintenance and termination of campaigns of political violence The volume aims to understand not only how former perpetrators and victims can work in preventing violence in a number of contexts but more broadly the narratives that support and oppose violence the construction of victimisation the politicisation of victimhood the justifications for violence and the potential for preventing and encouraging desistance from violence This book will be of much interest to students of terrorism and political violence victimology criminology security studies and IR in general The Oxford History of the Irish Book, Volume V Clare Hutton, Patrick Walsh, 2011-06-23 Part of a series providing an authoritative history of the book in Ireland this volume comprehensively outlines the history of 20th century Irish book culture This book embraces all the written and printed traditions and heritages of Ireland and places them in the global context of a worldwide interest in book histories Irish Media John Horgan, 2012-11-12 Irish Media A Critical History maps the landscape of media in Ireland from the foundation of the modern state in 1922 to the present Covering all principal media forms print and electronic in the Republic and in Northern Ireland John Horgan shows how Irish history and politics have shaped the media of Ireland and in turn have been shaped by them

Beginning in a country ravaged by civil war it traces the complexities of wartime censorship and details the history of media technology from the development of radio to the inauguration of television in the 1950s and 1960s It covers the birth development and sometimes the death of major Irish media during this period examining the reasons for failure and success and government attempts to regulate and respond to change Finally it addresses questions of media globalisation ownership and control and looks at issues of key significance for the future Horgan demonstrates why in a country whose political divisions and economic development have given it a place on the world stage out of all proportion to its size the media have been and remain key players in Irish history

The Passenger: Ireland The Passenger, 2022-04-12 The best new writing photography art and reportage from and about Ireland in the series that's like a literary vacation Publishers Weekly Ireland is a land full of charm and conflict a country that in just a few decades has gone from being a poor semi theocratic society to a thriving economy free from the influence of the Catholic Church With the 1998 peace agreements the conflict between nationalists and unionists seemed if not resolved at least dormant But Brexit with the ambiguous position it leaves Northern Ireland in caused old tensions to resurface with ramifications in politics society culture and sport Meanwhile south of the border epochal transformation has seen a deeply patriarchal conservative society give space to diversity the only country in the world to enshrine gay marriage in law through a referendum And there's a whole other Ireland abroad an Irish diaspora that looks to the old country with newfound pride but doesn't forget the ugliness it fled from Memory and identity intertwine with the transformations from globalization to climate change that are remodeling the Irish landscape from the coastal communities under threat of disappearing along with the Irish language fishermen use to talk about the sea inland the peat bogs until recently important sources of energy and jobs are being abandoned Pieces in this collection include The Mass is ended by Catherine Dunne and Caelainn Hogan The Way Back by Colum McCann A Trip to Westeros by Mark O'Connell Plus life on the margins of two unions and right in the middle of Brexit making war on each other for thirty years while playing on the same national rugby team emigrating to the great enemy or transforming the country one referendum at a time digging peat bogs and building cottages talking of the sea in Gaelic and much more These books are so rich and engrossing that it is rewarding to read them even when one is stuck at home The Times Literary Supplement
