Because there are more women in the Gospel of Luke than in any other gospel feminists have given it much attention In this commentary Shelly Matthews and Barbara Reid show that feminist analysis demands much more than counting the number of female characters Feminist biblical interpretation examines how the female characters function in the narrative and also scrutinizes the workings of power with respect to empire to anti Judaism and to other forms of othering Matthews and Reid draw attention to the ambiguities of the text both the liberative possibilities and the ways that Luke upholds the patriarchal status quo and guide readers to empowering reading strategies Scenting Salvation Susan Ashbrook Harvey, 2015-08-25

This book explores the role of bodily sensory experience in early Christianity first seventh centuries AD by focusing on the importance of smell in ancient Mediterranean culture Following its legalization in the fourth century Roman Empire Christianity cultivated a dramatically flourishing devotional piety in which the bodily senses were utilized as crucial instruments of human divine interaction Rich olfactory practices developed as part of this shift with lavish uses of incense holy oils and other sacred scents At the same time Christians showed profound interest in what smells could mean How could the experience of smell be construed in revelatory terms What specifically could it convey How and what could be known through smell Scenting Salvation argues that ancient Christians used olfactory experience for purposes of a distinctive religious epistemology formulating knowledge of the divine in order to yield in turn a particular human identity Using a wide array of Pagan Jewish and Christian sources Susan Ashbrook Harvey examines the ancient understanding of smell through religious rituals liturgical practices mystagogical commentaries literary imagery homiletic conventions scientific medical and cosmological models ascetic disciplines theological discourse and eschatological expectations In the process she argues for a richer appreciation of ancient notions of embodiment and of the roles the body might serve in religion The fifty-first (-136th) annual report of the Religious tract society Religious tract society, 1880 Eerdmans Commentary on the Bible James D.
