Indigenous Identity Formation in Postsecondary Institutions Barbara G. Barnes, Cora J. Voyageur, 2020-10-25 A new model of Indigenous identity formation in Canadian postsecondary institutions What role does postsecondary education play in the formation of Indigenous identity Some argue that this impact must be negative not only because postsecondary education draws students away from their communities but also because of the Eurocentric worldviews that dominate most institutions However according to a ground breaking study by Barbara Barnes and Cora Voyageur the truth is much more nuanced and surprising During their research Professors Barnes and Voyageur followed 60 Indigenous students from a variety of backgrounds at six postsecondary institutions in western Canada and they present their findings here They explore how the students' experiences fit with conventional and Indigenous identity formation theories and they consider the impacts of colonization and the Indian Act Based on the experiences of the students Barnes and Voyageur build an entirely new model of Indigenous identity formation in Canadian postsecondary institutions

Religious Radicalization and Securitization in Canada and Beyond Paul Bramadat,Lorne Dawson,2014-09-17 After the terrorist attacks of 9 11 those in London and Madrid and the arrest of the Toronto 18 Canadians have changed how they think about terrorism and security As governments respond to the potential threat of homegrown radicalism many observers have become concerned about the impact of those security measures on the minority groups whose lives are securitized In Religious Radicalization and Securitization in Canada and Beyond Paul Bramadat and Lorne Dawson bring together contributors from a wide range of academic disciplines to examine the challenges created by both religious radicalism and the state's and society's response to it. This collection takes a critical look at what is known about religious radicalization, how minorities are affected by radicalization from within and securitization from without, and how the public media and government are attempting to cope with the dangers of both radicalization and securitization. Religious Radicalization and Securitization in Canada and Beyond is an ideal guide to the ongoing debates on how best to respond to radicalization without sacrificing the commitments to multiculturalism and social justice that many Canadians hold dear. When Jackie Mittoo and Leroy Sibbles migrated from Jamaica to Toronto in the early 1970s, the musicians brought reggae with them, sparking the flames of one of Canada's most vibrant music scenes. In King Alpha's Song in a Strange Land, professional reggae musician and scholar Jason Wilson tells the story of how the organic transnational nature of reggae brought black and white youth together, opening up a cultural dialogue between Jamaican migrants and Canadians along Toronto's ethnic frontlines. This underground subculture rebelled against the status quo, eased the acculturation process, and made bands such as Messenjah and the Sattalites household names for a brief but important time. By looking at Canada's golden age of reggae from the perspective of both Jamaican migrants and white Torontonians, Wilson reveals the power of music to break through the bonds of race and ease the hardships associated with transnational migration.
