

The Nine Noble Virtues

Courage

I suffer no evil to go unredressed, and I fight against the enemies of family, nation, race and Earth.

Truth

I seek the truth and defend it from those who do not honor it.
I speak true words or stand in silence.

Honor

I stand by my oaths and honor my ancestors
by keeping my name pure among the folk.

Fidelity

I stand by and support my kindred regardless of obstacles.
I am true to my race and nation.

Discipline

I do what is right and necessary of my own accord without bribe or threat.

Hospitality

I open hearth and hand in good faith
extending what I can to those I find cause to welcome.

Self-reliance

I learn skills and grow strong so that I may make my way in the world and be neither a slave nor a burden to anyone.

Industriousness

I take pride and find joy in labor.
I prove my worth through my efforts.

Perseverance

I press on against all odds until my goal is met, victory is achieved, and I have done all that I am able to do.

The House Of Nine Virtues is a pragmatic response to the crisis of our age a crisis best summarized by Flannery O'Conner's observation that in our fractured culture we cannot agree on morals Professor Fogarty writes with acute awareness of historical moral constructs but this book has little in common with those that merely suggest contemporary application of insights gleaned from other times and cultures This work is a cohesive approach to life and morality that because it is built on a foundation of universally shared aspirations offers realistic hope for achieving cultural harmony. The Grand Scribe's Records Qian Sima, 1994. Women in the Ottoman Balkans Amila Buturovic, Irvin Cemil Schick, 2007-09-26. Women in the Ottoman Balkans were founders of pious endowments, organizers of labour and conspicuous consumers of western luxury goods; they were lovers, wives, castaways, divorcees, widows, the subjects of ballads and the narrators of folk tales, victims of communal oppression and protectors of their communities against supernatural forces. In their daily lives they experienced oppression and self denial in the face of frequently unsympathetic local customs but also empowerment, self affirmation and acculturation. This volume not only deepens our understanding of the distinctive contributions that women have made to Balkan history but also re-evaluates this through a more inclusive and interdisciplinary analysis in which gender takes its place alongside other categories such as class, culture, religion, ethnicity and nationhood. This original and stimulating examination of the lives of Muslim, Christian and Jewish women in southeastern Europe during the centuries of Ottoman rule focuses especially on those social relations that crossed ethnic and confessional intercommunal boundaries.
