Environmental Justice in Early Victorian Literature Adrian Tait, 2023-08-30 This innovative new book combines environmental justice scholarship with a material ecocriticism to explore the way in which early Victorian literature 1837-1860 responded to the growing problem of environmental injustice As this book emphasises environmental injustice simply the convergence of poverty and pollution was not an isolated phenomenon but a structural form of inequality a product of industrial modernity's radical reformation of British society it particularly affected the working classes As each chapter reveals in detail this form of environmental inequality or classism drew sharply critical reactions from figures as diverse as Thomas Carlyle Friedrich Engels Charles Dickens and John Ruskin and from within the Chartist movement as working class writers themselves reacted to the hazardous realities of a divided society But as this book also reveals these writers recognised that a truly just society respects the needs of the nonhuman and takes account of the material world in all its own aliveness even if only tentatively they reached for a more inclusive emergent form of justice that might address the social and ecological impacts of industrial modernity an idea which is no less relevant today This book represents an indispensable resource for scholars and students working in the fields of Victorian literature environmental justice and ecocriticism

Making Laws That Work David Goddard, 2022-07-14 This book examines why laws fail and provides strategies for making laws that work Why do some laws fail And how can we make laws that actually work This helpful guide written by a leading jurist provides answers to these questions and gives practical strategies for law making It looks at a range of laws which have failed the damp squibs that achieve little or nothing in practice laws that overshoot their policy goals laws that produce nasty surprises and laws that backfire undermining the very goals they were intended to advance It goes on to examine some of the reasons why such failures occur drawing on insights from psychology and economics including the work of Kahneman and others on how humans develop narratives about the ways in which the world works and make predictions about the future It provides strategies to reduce the risk of failure of legislative projects including adopting a more structured and systematic approach to analysing the likely effects of the legislation ensuring we identify the limits of our knowledge and the uncertainties of our predictions and framing laws in a way that enables us to adjust the way they operate as new information becomes available or circumstances change Key themes include the importance of the institutions that administer the legislation of default outcomes and of the stickiness of those defaults The book concludes with helpful checklists of questions to ask and issues to consider which will be of benefit to anyone involved in designing legislation
