Russell Grimwade John Poynter, 1967-01-01 Biography of an extraordinarily diverse Australian industrialist the founder of the bequest which endows the Miegunyah imprint In his private interests no less than in his public life Russell Grimwade was a man of extraordinary diversity Active in some of the largest and most enterprising business concerns in Australia prominent in such bodies as the National Museum and the University of Melbourne he yet found time to pursue hobbies such as wood working and produced with his own hands cabinet work of exquisite perfection He designed golf clubs did research into the Australian eucalypts and pioneered motoring in a country whose roads hitherto had known only horses and bullocks He was the son of F S Grimwade an Englishman who settled in Victoria in 1863 In partnership with Alfred Felton F S Grimwade established firms which developed eventually into components of some of the largest industrial undertakings in Australia such as Drug Houses of Australia and Australian Consolidated Industries In the growth of such concerns Russell's part was an important and constructive one Thus Sir Russell Grimwade's biographer was obliged to traverse many fields from industrial gas production to forestry from CSIRO to the collection of rare books and prints In doing so he illuminates not merely the life of Russell Grimwade as an individual but also his class his generation and his country This book was the first title published in the Miegunyah Press series the establishment of which was made possible by a bequest under the will of Sir Russell Grimwade Miegunyah was the home of Mab and Russell Grimwade from the year 1911 The Official Catalogue of the Exhibits Wereldtentoonstelling, 1880 Nature's Hygiene Charles Thomas Kingzett, 1894 Illustrated Handbook of Victoria, Australia, 1886 A Science of Our Own Peter H. Hoffenberg, 2019-10-22 When the Reverend Henry Carmichael opened the Sydney Mechanics School of Arts in 1833 he introduced a bold directive for Australia to advance on the scale of nations it needed to develop a science of its own Prominent scientists in the colonies of New South Wales and Victoria answered this call by participating in popular exhibitions far and near from London's Crystal Place in 1851 to Sydney Melbourne Adelaide and Brisbane during the final decades of the nineteenth century A Science of Our Own explores the influential work of local botanists chemists and geologists William B Clarke Joseph Bosisto Robert Brough Smyth and Ferdinand Mueller who contributed to shaping a distinctive public science in Australia during the nineteenth century It extends beyond the political underpinnings of the development of public science to consider the rich social and cultural context at its core For the Australian colonies as Peter H Hoffenberg argues these exhibitions not only offered a path to progress by promoting both the knowledge and authority of local scientists and public policies they also ultimately redefined the relationship between science and society by representing and appealing to the growing popularity of science at home and abroad The Untrained Environmentalist John Fenton, 2011-03-04 Fifty years ago a young farmer named John Fenton took over his family's run down sheep property in Victoria Named Lanark the property was barren windswept and environmentally all but dead Fenton set about bringing the property back to life by bringing the environment back to life He planted trees He reinstated wetlands He created wildlife The Colonial Earth Tim Bonyhady,2003-04-01 Using the work of great Australian painters and poets as an entry point this cultural study counters the popular myth that early colonial settlers were environmentally irresponsible and offers both aesthetic and historical evidence that suggests nature always figured prominently in the Australian national consciousness Preserving endangered species protecting forests maintaining public land rights and staving off climate change were at issue in the first environmental law of Australia enacted in 1788 Parliamentary debates personal observations and artistic renderings explore the texture and dimensions of early Australian environmentalism No Need to be Afraid Desmond O'Connor,1996 The story of how Italians struggled to earn the right to live and work amidst an Anglo Saxon society It is a story of fear the Britishers fear that the swarthy undesirables would threaten their jobs and their way of life the fear as WW2 erupted that Italians might sabotage the war effort and assist the Axis powers to take over Australia Littell's Living Age ,1889 The Living Age ,1889 The Dominions Office and Colonial Office List ... ,1897 The Colonial Office List for ...
