Joseph Greer and His Daughter

JOSEPH GREER is a pirate without a ship; a savage without a jungle; a caveman without a cave. He is dynamic, hot tempered, handsome, in a black-bearded fashion. He knows the world's rough hand, but has had enough and now wants the silky things of civilization. He is an inventor, an industrial engineer, with a record of achievement and a big idea. Women are attracted to him—all kinds of women. Men think twice, realizing that he has tremendous potentialities, but whether for success or failure they aren't sure. This is his story.

BEATRICE GREER is her father's own daughter, though they meet for the first time when she is nineteen. She has all and more of his good looks, something of his courage, much of his temperament; is more, even than he, a creature of the jungle. She is an explorer in experience and emotion, always ready to chance what she has for what she hasn't and thinks she wants. But she lacks her father's sagacity, and is sly, truant, wilful, suspicious. Women appraise her instantly, if not always correctly; men take their time, for she has beauty. And this is her story.
