Family Caregiving Across the Lifespan Eva Kahana,David E. Biegel,May Wykle,1994-03-16 Published in cooperation with the Center for Practice Innovations Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences Case Western Reserve University Increased life expectancy the deinstitutionalization of persons with mental illness the rise of home health care and advances in medical technology have resulted in greater numbers of dependent people requiring care by family members The frail elderly the chronically mentally ill and the physically disabled are examples of such groups who now receive their daily care in the community How do families accept the burden of this care What are the physical and emotional demands of such caregiving Are the families prepared to assume this role Family Caregiving Across the Lifespan considers the broad spectrum of chronic illnesses that necessitate family caregiving throughout the lifespan and expands the caregiving paradigm by including in its focus both members of the caregiving dyad and significant non family caregivers It also explores the social context in which care is provided an entire section of the volume is devoted to discussions of the interface between informal and formal caregivers and society at large. Among the other subjects this volume addresses are the negative consequences of family caregiving, the value of providing support to caregivers, and caregivers of persons living with AIDS. Family Caregiving Across the Lifespan is important reading for those in social work, nursing, family medicine, and clinical psychology. Family Caregiving Across the Lifespan represents a significant milestone in the continuing maturation of this vital area of long-term care. The title is an understatement of the authors' accomplishments. Rather than offering narrow boxes or labels, the book invites the reader to join in a broadened perspective on caregiving so that it can more fully reflect the richness of the lives of all involved. For those who encounter Family Caregiving Across the Lifespan as part of their continuing study of caregiving, the book provides the integrating milestone of caregiving literature. Journal of Case Management: This volume is a useful compendium of articles on family caregiving. The fourteen chapters in this volume address many important topics in family caregiving. One of the book's major contributions is its clarification that family caregiving to frail or chronically ill people has no age limitation, although there are unique issues at different points in the development of individuals and families. The book has exceptional merit. It expands our understanding of family caregiving, provides important ideas for future research, offers research findings that enhance our understanding of family care, and presents a very useful review of the literature. This book would be a beneficial addition to the library of all researchers in the area of caregiving. They will discover worthwhile conceptualizations and gain new insights that can inform their research. Practitioners should also benefit from this collection. The chapters addressing interaction between formal and informal caregivers should give practitioners a deeper understanding of how to be more effective in dealing with informal caregivers and care recipients. Ageing Society: One paper in this volume deserves particular notice because it attempts to do what many of the authors feel is most critical in caregiving research but also most difficult: namely, to analyze the effectiveness of caregiving, the effect of provision of care on elder health outcomes. This is an important and original conceptualization of the problem. Steven M. Albert, Contemporary Gerontology: This book is both unique and valuable because it embraces Brody's observation that family caregiving is not limited to a specific segment of the life span. Moreover, the book is not limited to filial caregiving but entertains an impressive variety of contexts of family caregiving. This book will be a valuable text in graduate-level courses. Journal of Marriage and the Family

Developmental Transitions across the Lifespan Leo B. Hendry, 2015-05-08. Choice Recommended Read. Leo B. Hendry is one of the foremost developmental psychologists of his generation. His diverse range of interests have included studies on young people's involvement in competitive sports, investigations into teacher and pupil relations in school, adolescents' leisure pursuits, and their family relations, parenting styles, youth workers, and mentoring youth, unemployment, adolescent health, behaviours, and transition to early adulthood. His research interests now include work on ageing and retirement. Developmental Transitions across the Lifespan is the first collection of Hendry's works and essentially joins the dots to provide an overarching perspective on lifespan development through a dynamic systems theory approach Underpinned by empirical research this collection of journal articles and book chapters is linked by a contemporary commentary which not only contextualises each piece within today's research climate but builds to provide an unorthodox comprehensive but above all compelling perspective on human development from childhood to old age Leo B Hendry's research output has been significant and influential This is an important book that will provide students and researchers in developmental psychology not only with an opportunity to view his contribution holistically but in connecting his range of research interests provides a new contribution to our understanding of lifespan development in its own right

The Developing Person Through the Life Span Kathleen Stassen Berger, 2005 The Developing Person Through the Life Span Sixth Edition presents theory research practical examples and policy issues in a way that inspires students to think about human development and about the individual's role in the community and the world Review the new edition and you'll find Berger's signature strengths on display the perceptive analysis of current research the lively and personal writing style and the unmistakable commitment to students You'll also find a wealth of new topics plus a video based Media Tool Kit that takes the teaching and learning of human development to a new level

Textbook of Human Development – A Lifespan Development Approach Srivastava Sushila & Rani, Sudha K., Textbook of Human Development A Lifespan Development Approach

Adolescence and Adulthood Leo Hendry, Marion Kloep, 2012-02-13 From the teenage years to retirement each phase of life presents different challenges and new experiences Examining the patterns of development throughout the lifespan the authors provide key insights into how we experience the world and they examine how established theories have been challenged by recent changes to the understanding of human development Whatever your level of study this absorbing introduction will give you a deeper appreciation of the different life phases and how psychological principles aid our understanding of them

The Taste Experience Xena Mindhurst, AI, 2025-02-12 The Taste Experience explores the fascinating science behind how we perceive flavor impacting our food choices health and overall well being It delves into how taste buds function as detectors transmitting signals to the brain to create complex flavor profiles Interestingly genetics play a role leading to supertasters who are more sensitive to certain tastes The book examines the journey of taste from initial contact with receptor cells to the brain's processing centers highlighting the roles of the thalamus and cortex It reveals how taste integrates with other senses like smell and texture to shape our holistic experience of flavor The influence of culture and personal experiences on taste preferences is also discussed Using insights from sensory biology neuroscience and food science the book presents data from various studies to support its arguments Progressing across chapters it offers readers a complete overview of the field perfect for students food enthusiasts and anyone curious about the science of taste

Child Norma Tracey,2014-11-12 Transgenerational Trauma and the Aboriginal Preschool Child Healing through Intervention approaches trauma from transgenerational perspectives that go back to the early colonization of Australia and describes what that event has historically meant for the country s Aboriginal population and its culture This history has continued to propagate traumatically across subsequent generations This book reveals the work underway at Gunawirra a group in Sydney founded to work against transgenerational trauma in families with children aged 0-5. The group then began working with projects in more than forty country preschools throughout the state of New South Wales. Two intrinsic forms of healing that are an integral part of this ancient culture, Dadirri (deep listening) and The Dreaming, are foundational concepts for the treatment. While these concepts are core elements of the project, this book also employs fresh contemporary theory and case studies that present ways to effectively address the deeper psychological origins and presence of trauma in our present-day preschool children and in traumatized children throughout the world. It gives special attention to the use of therapeutic measures based in psychoanalytic thought and related modes of responding to trauma. Through many moving examples, the book unites through art stories of The Dreaming and the ancient gift of listening, a powerful way of approaching present-day work with Aboriginal people and their children. The contributors' work is at the forefront of field research, clinical work, and theoretical interdisciplinary work. This book is essential to workers and teachers who deal daily with traumatized children in their communities and schools. In the usefulness of its model, the depth of its thinking, and the intensity of its methodology, Transgenerational Trauma and the Aboriginal Preschool Child breaks new ground in the treatment of trauma for people who care for children everywhere.
