A Handbook for History Teachers James A. Duthie,2012-09-28 History is not a mere chronicle of facts but a dialogue between competing interpretations of the past it should be taught as such Teaching history in this way makes it both intellectually demanding and more interesting while at the same time helps students acquire the knowledge and skills necessary to become functioning citizens in a democracy The opening chapters provide the rationale for the study of history its epistemological basis and the logic of the discipline The bulk of the book deals with practical ways to help students acquire process and apply information In particular it addresses the specific thinking skills required by the discipline with many effective techniques for helping students to master them The implications of this approach for teacher evaluation of student work are also addressed Social Studies Curriculum Resource Handbook ,1992 Across the Centuries Houghton Mifflin Company,1999 California in a Time of Excellence James Andrew LaSpina,2009-02-26 Follows California's efforts at reforming the public school system from 1983 to the present Reauthorization of the Office of the Educational Research and Improvement Act United States. Public Education in a Multicultural Society Robert K. Fullinwider,1996-01-26 This collection of essays deals with philosophical and educational questions about multi culturalism in primary and secondary schools Human Rights,

Diversity, and National Identity Patricia E. Bromley, 2011 Fundamental world changes that simultaneously undermine a nation state's charisma and promote the rise of a supra national system have wide ranging effects upon national states within a modern global society My dissertation empirically examines the effects of social and cultural globalization on systems of mass schooling which are central institutions in every country Globally primary and secondary education initially emerged as the premier tool for nation states to create a unified national citizenry loyal to their country and socialized into a common cultural tradition I examine the extent to which this original nationalizing purpose of schooling is challenged by the increased emphases on universal human rights and diversity in civic education The analyses consist of two sections Hierarchical linear models are used to analyze a unique primary data source of 521 social science textbooks from 74 countries during the period 1970-2008 These findings show a worldwide increase in emphasis on human rights and increases in discussions of diversity in well established liberal democracies Cross national quantitative analyses are complemented by a qualitative case study of social science curricula in British Columbia BC which examines nation building within a context of strong emphasis on diversity and human rights The BC study utilizes currently approved high school citizenship education textbooks as well as older textbooks dating back to 1871 It also draws on a selection of historical documents including Ministry of Education reports curricular frameworks and high school exit exams Process wise I find the incorporation of human rights and diversity reflects macro level changes in national and global society Content wise I find four main approaches to reconciling ideas of human rights and diversity with national identity 1 framing human rights and multiculturalism as part of national identity 2 using pedagogical approaches that promote multiple perspectives and individual agency 3 celebrating social and scientific figures and accomplishments as the source of national pride and 4 drawing on exogenous sources to affirm state legitimacy This study is one of the first to theorize that civic education worldwide is moving away from a national focus and to provide empirical evidence of this trend A key implication is that educational systems are being repurposed from their original goal of constructing a unitary national citizenry to a new view emphasizing human diversity and equality in a globally interconnected world Further students are increasingly taught that the global civil society and non state actors are important and legitimate agents of social change Across the Centuries, 1999
