Ivanka Wessels, 2019-07-11 Syria is now one of the most important countries in the world for the documentary film industry. Since the 1970s Syrian cinema masters played a defining role in avant garde filmmaking and political dissent against authoritarianism. After the outbreak of violence in 2011 an estimated 500 000 video clips were uploaded making it one of the first YouTubed revolutions in history. This book is the first history of documentary filmmaking in Syria. Based on extensive media ethnography and in depth interviews with Syrian filmmakers in exile the book offers an archival analysis of the documentary work by masters of Syrian cinema such as Nabil Maleh Ossama Mohammed Mohammed Malas Hala Al Abdallah Hanna Ward Ali Atassi and Omar Amiralay. Joshka Wessels traces how the works of these filmmakers became iconic for a new generation of filmmakers at the beginning of the 21st century and maps the radical change in the documentary landscape after the revolution of 2011. Special attention is paid to the late Syrian filmmaker and pro democracy activist Bassel Shehadeh and the video resistance from Aleppo and Raqqa against the regime of President Bashar al Assad and the Islamic State. An essential resource for scholars of Syrian Studies this book will also be highly relevant to the fields of media conflict research anthropology and political science. SMH 2016

Lucas Faulhaber, Lena Azevedo, 2015-03-01 The city of Rio de Janeiro has been an Olympic champion in housing prices over the past decade. The intense process of real estate appreciation in the city in recent years has primarily been sustained by the construction work associated with the urban reforms currently underway and the expectations related to a cluster of events particularly the FIFA World Cup in 2014 and the Olympic Games in 2016. Research and surveys about urban trends in Rio de Janeiro reflect some particularities about the process of capitalist production of space and how a market oriented outlook has been reemphasised in the city mainly during the current municipal administration beginning in 2009 at the expense of its citizens rights. In this process the residents who lose their houses as a result of the appreciation process do not enjoy the benefits that it brings about. On the contrary they are marginalised in the reorganisation of how the urban space is occupied and appropriated. This book intends to establish connections between urbanisation activities political projects and processes of intervention in the urban territory. Our aim is to set out the possible relationships between expropriations removals new housing developments security policies large scale projects for the provision of public sporting and urban mobility facilities along with a process of producing and adding value to land based on the exclusion and elimination of a portion of the population from these localities. In other words we will investigate the role of the state and other social and economic actors in constructing these new ventures in Rio de Janeiro.
