Dénoncés par certains comme des affabulateurs, des diffamateurs, alors citoyens engagés sociaux de justice pour d'autres, ils se sont opposés aux institutions, ministères, lobbies, multinationales... signalant corruption, marchés truqués, fraude fiscale, atteinte aux droits, à l'environnement... Pour beaucoup, la carrière fut brisée. Ils ont tous payé cher. Quelques-uns furent honorés. Quelques lanceurs d'alerte... Invoiez l'être exclusive.

Masazumi Harada : en 1961 ce médecin découvre la situation tragique des victimes de la maladie qui frappe depuis cinq ans la ville de Minamata au Japon : l'usine chimique Chisso rejette dans la mer du mercure contaminant les poissons dont se nourrissent les pêcheurs. Pour l'avis médical en 2011, il est poursuivi par l'hôpital pour diffamation. La plainte est jugée irrecevable. Il travaille toujours à l'hôpital mais sans aucune responsabilité et dénonce harcèlements et tentatives d'intimidation.

Christoph Meili : en 1997 il travaille comme agent de sécurité à l'UBS à Zurich. Il découvre dans la salle de destruction de documents que l'UBS détruit des documents bancaires de la période 1943-1963, et suppose que certains concernent des comptes ayant appartenu à des clients juifs tués dans l'Holocauste. Il découvre ainsi des documents de la Reichsbank listant comptes et titres de propriété à Berlin, confisqués par le régime nazi, et placés sur des comptes suisses. Il opère des documents chez lui, les remet à une organisation juive qui contacte la police puis la presse. Les autorités suisses émettent un mandat d'arrêt pour infraction à la loi sur le secret bancaire. Il fuit aux USA et obtient l'asile politique.

La banque lui demande de détruire une partie de son disque dur. Puis la placarde, l'humilie, l'attaque bien sûr en justice pour la faire craquer. Puis de dix ans après, elle n'a pas retrouvé d'emploi et est en fin de droits. UBS a été mise en examen en France et en Suisse.

Pierre Meneton : chercheur spécialiste des maladies cardio-vasculaires, il est poursuivi en justice en 2008 pour avoir dénoncé le poids des lobbies dans la santé. On consomme 10 g de sel par jour en moyenne. Trop. Les Salines de France lui reprochent d'avoir dit que « le lobby des producteurs de sel et du secteur agroalimentaire industriel est très actif. Il séduirait les professionnels de la santé et les médias ». Le tribunal lui donne raison.

Raymond Aurillac : militant écologiste, il propose la mise en examen en 1994 d'Alain Carignon, maire de Grenoble, pour corruption. Au réexamen, il révèle l'affaire des coupures de l'Élysée sous la présidence de Sarkozy.

Dix ans plus tard et après une soixantaine de procédures judiciaires contre lui en France, au Luxembourg et en Belgique, il est blanchi par le Cour de Cassation de sa condamnation pour deux ouvrages et un discours injurieux. Nicole Marie Meyer : diplomate au Quai d'Orsay, elle découvre de graves dysfonctionnements de comptabilité et de gestion du personnel, des faux et usages de faux et abus de biens sociaux. Mais elle en savait trop. La divulgation des malversations au sein du ministère lui vaut d'être évincée du Quai d'Orsay. Après des années d'acharnement, elle a remporté son procès contre l'État et poursuit son combat en créant Transparency International, ONG œuvrant pour la protection des lanceurs d'alerte. Alternative Medicines Stefano Maddalena, 2005 During the past few decades alternative medicines have gained increasing importance in Western countries This book is the first extensive comparative and interdisciplinary study on the subject The recent evolution of these alternative techniques is considered from the perspective of their integration into Western medical systems The first part of the research is an overview of the current position of alternative medicines in some Western countries Sociological elements as well as various research and educational issues are presented The study then focuses on the licensing to practise alternative medicine and the coverage of alternative medicines The second part of the study analyses and compares the most important regulatory mechanisms. Proposals are also made for the regulation of alternative medicines. The last chapter deals with the concept of an integrated system of medicine. The main components of the system are presented and compared to current trends and a theoretical model. Moreover, the book addresses the questions: What is an integrated system of medicine? Are we moving towards such a system? If so, what are the reasons and is such a shift reasonable and feasible?

The Experimenting Society William N. Dunn, 2024-11-01. An experimenting society is one in which policy relevant knowledge is created. It is then critically assessed and communicated in real life or natural settings with the aim of discovering new forms of public action to improve the problem solving capacities of society. This latest volume of the distinguished Policy Studies Review Annual series probes, evaluates and augments the work of Donald T. Campbell on experimental societies. A basic assumption of this volume is that Campbell's perspective supplies a useful way to address increasingly complex and seemingly unmanageable problems facing the United States and other postindustrial societies. This volume is also the fourteenth festschrift to be issued by Transaction. The focus is on theoretical as well as practical options for creating an experimenting society. The rationale for this focus is the belief increasingly shared in the social science and policy making communities alike that researchers are essentially ignorant about how to solve many of the most pressing larger problems of this epoch. This frank recognition of ignorance is a prerequisite of genuine scientific and professional curiosity without which knowledge gains are next to impossible to achieve and a precondition of an experimenting society. Contributors to this original volume include Steve Fuller, Duncan MacRae Jr., Anthony S. Bryk, Robert A. Beauregard, Rita Mae Kelly, Peter Gregware, Burkart Holzner, B. Guy Peters, C. West Churchman and Ian I. Mitroff. Their multidisciplinary competencies are at once philosophical, methodological and substantive. They address such questions as: What new or bold policies are available in domains such as education, science and urban development? In what ways can theoretical knowledge and practical action be fused so as to illuminate or alleviate policy problems? What should be done? Included are excerpts from Campbell's foundational paper The Experimenting Society as well as a recent article entitled Methods for the Experimenting Society which circulated in unpublished form for many years. An unusual feature of the book is Campbell's responses to those who have addressed his work with candor and intelligence. It will be of interest to policy studies scholars, sociologists and social scientists.

Alternative and Mainstream Media Linda Jean Kenix,2011-11-01 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on www.bloomsburycollections.com Historically alternative media have been viewed as fundamental albeit at times culturally peripheral forces in social change In this book however Kenix argues that these media do not uniformly subvert the hierarchies of access that are so central to mainstream media in fact their journalistic norms and routines have always been based on the professional standards of the mainstream Kenix goes on to posit the perception of mainstream and alternative as a misconception She argues that although alternative media can and do construct distinct alternative communications they have always existed on the same continuum as the mainstream and the two will continue to converge Through comparative analysis this book argues that many alternative and mainstream media are merging to create a continuous spectrum rooted in commercial ideology Indeed much of what is now considered alternative media actually draws very little from principles of the independent press whereas many contemporary mainstream media now use communication techniques more commonly associated with media that do not operate for
