Resources, Committee on a Study of Technologies to Benefit Farmers in Africa and South Asia, 2009-02-21 Increased agricultural productivity is a major stepping stone on the path out of poverty in sub Saharan Africa and South Asia but farmers there face tremendous challenges improving production Poor soil inefficient water use and a lack of access to plant breeding resources nutritious animal feed high quality seed and fuel and electricity combined with some of the most extreme environmental conditions on Earth have made yields in crop and animal production far lower in these regions than world averages Emerging Technologies to Benefit Farmers in Sub Saharan Africa and South Asia identifies sixty emerging technologies with the potential to significantly improve agricultural productivity in sub Saharan Africa and South Asia Eighteen technologies are recommended for immediate development or further exploration Scientists from all backgrounds have an opportunity to become involved in bringing these and other technologies to fruition The opportunities suggested in this book offer new approaches that can synergize with each other and with many other activities to transform agriculture in sub Saharan Africa and South Asia

Direct and Indirect Human Contributions to Terrestrial Carbon Fluxes

National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Stephanie Johnson, Rob Coppock, 2004-07-30 Human induced climate change is an important environmental issue worldwide as scientific studies increasingly demonstrate that human activities are changing the Earth's climate Even if dramatic reductions in emissions were made today some human induced changes are likely to persist beyond the 21st century The Kyoto Protocol calls for emissions reporting that separates out management induced changes in greenhouse gases from those changes caused by indirect human effects e g carbon dioxide fertilization nitrogen deposition or precipitation changes natural effects and past practices on forested agricultural lands This book summarizes a September 2003 workshop where leaders from academia government and industry came together to discuss the current state of scientific understanding on quantifying direct human induced change in terrestrial carbon stocks and related changes in greenhouse gas emissions and distinguishing these changes from those caused by indirect and natural effects

Assessing the Benefits of Public Research within an Economic Framework: The Case of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, 2010

Routledge International

Handbook of Food Studies Ken Albala, 2013-05-07 Over the past decade there has been a remarkable flowering of interest in food and nutrition both within the popular media and in academia Scholars are increasingly using foodways food systems and eating habits as a new unit of analysis within their own disciplines and students are rushing into classes and formal degree programs focused on food Introduced by the editor and including original articles by over thirty leading food scholars from around the world the Routledge International Handbook of Food Studies offers students scholars and all those interested in food related research a one stop easy to use reference guide Each article includes a brief history of food research within a discipline or on a particular topic a discussion of research methodologies and ideological or theoretical positions resources for research including archives grants and fellowship opportunities as well as suggestions for further study Each entry also explains the logistics of succeeding as a student and professional in food studies This clear direct Handbook will appeal to those hoping to start a career in academic food studies as well as those hoping to shift their research to a food related project Strongly interdisciplinary this work will be of interest to students and scholars throughout the social sciences and humanities

Human Ecology Daniel G. Bates, Judith Tucker, 2010-03-29 This book arose from the need to develop accessible research based case study material which addresses contemporary issues and problems in the rapidly evolving field of human ecology Academic political and indeed public interest in the environmental sciences is on the rise This is no doubt spurred by media coverage of climate change and global warming and attendant natural disasters such as unusual drought and flood conditions toxic dust storms pollution of air and water and the like But there is also a growing intellectual awareness of the social causes of anthropogenic environmental impacts political vectors in determining conservation outcomes and the role of local representations of ecological knowledge in resource management and sustainable yield production This is reflected in the rapid increase of ecology courses being taught at leading universities in the fast growing developing countries much as was the case a decade or two ago in Europe and North America The research presented here is all taken from recent issues of Human Ecology An Interdisciplinary Journal Since the journal itself is a leading forum for contemporary research the articles we have selected represent a cross section of work which brings the perspectives of human ecology to bear on current problems being faced around the world The chapters are organized in such a way to facilitate the use of this volume either to teach a course or to introduce an informed reader to the field
