Rethinking Home Joseph A. Amato, 2002-04-01 Joseph A Amato proposes a bold and innovative approach to writing local history in this imaginative wide ranging and deeply engaging exploration of the meaning of place and home Arguing that people of every place and time deserve a history Amato draws on his background as a European cultural historian and a prolific writer of local history to explore such topics as the history of cleanliness sound anger madness the clandestine and the environment in southwestern Minnesota While dedicated to the unique experiences of a place his lively work demonstrates that contemporary local history provides a vital link for understanding the relation between immediate experience and the metamorphosis of the world at large In an era of encompassing forces and global sensibilities Rethinking Home advocates the power of local history to revivify the individual the concrete and the particular This singular book offers fresh perspectives themes and approaches for energizing local history at a time when the very notion of place is in jeopardy Amato explains how local historians shape their work around objects we can touch and institutions we have directly experienced For them theory always gives way to facts His vivid portraits of individual people places situations and cases which include murders crop scams and taking custody of the law are joined to local illustrations of the use of environmental and ecological history This book also puts local history in the service of contemporary history with the examination of recent demographic social and cultural transformations Critical concluding chapters on politics and literature especially Sinclair Lewis s Main Street and Longfellow s Hiawatha show how metaphor and myth invent distort and hold captive local towns peoples and places
