Renaissance to the 20th Century. Translated from the Italian by William Weaver Mario Praz,1964 Illustrated History of Furniture Frederick Litchfield,1900 Illustrated History of Furniture Frederick Litchfield,2016-09-14 Excerpt from

Illustrated History of Furniture From the Earliest to the Present Time It will be obvious that within the limits of a single volume of moderate dimensions it is impossible to give more than an outline sketch of many periods of design and taste which deserve far more consideration than is here bestowed upon them the reader is therefore asked to accept the first chapter which refers to Ancient Furniture and covers a period of several centuries as introductory to that which follows rather than as a serious attempt to examine the history of the Furniture during that space of time The fourth chapter which deals with a period of some hundred and fifty years from the time of King James the First until that of Chippendale and his contemporaries and the last three chapters are more fully descriptive than some others partly because trustworthy information as to these times is more accessible and partly because It IS probable that English readers will feel greater interest in the Furniture of which they are the subject The French meubles de luxe from the latter half of the seventeenth century until the Revolution are also treated more fully than the Furniture of other periods and countries on account of the interest which has been manifested in this description of the cabinet maker s and metal mounter s work during the past fifteen or twenty years There is evidence of this appreciation in the enormous prices realised at notable auction sales when such Furniture has been offered for competition to wealthy About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Scenographic Imagination Darwin Reid Payne,1993 In this enlarged and thoroughly revised third edition of his widely used text Darwin Reid Payne explores the principles and philosophies that shape the visual elements of theatre Payne sets out to discover who scenographers are and to define their responsibilities He sees scenographers as not merely craftspersons but artists with a special vision that spans all the arts Such artists are in a position to extend and amplify underlying meanings of the production The proper goal of beginning scenographers according to Payne is one day to be able to approach the job as artists in full command of their craft Payne seeks to instill in beginning scenographers a basic core of knowledge an understanding of theatre history and the development of drama a knowledge of art history and an understanding of periods and styles of architecture painting sculpture furnishings and costume and a familiarity with the principles techniques and materials of pictorial and three dimensional design This new edition contains 248 illustrations 38 more than the second edition Payne s goal certainly is to teach students what to do and how to do it equally important however is Payne s view that scenographers must know why To Payne Scenography is an art whose scope is nothing less than the whole world outside the theatre Scenographers must read not only in their own field but in others as well Payne has incorporated into his text many suggestions for outside readings quoting passages and even entire chapters from important works Stressing research Payne argues that without knowledge of the literature of their own and related arts scenographers cannot grow And that is the emphasis of this book to present aspiring scenographers with an approach and a set of concepts that will enable them to grow Toward that end Payne establishes five priorities the first of which is to develop in students what he calls time vision or the ability to see the historical past as a living place with living inhabitants The second priority is to bring about an awareness that allows students to see beneath the surface of objects and events Third students must be helped to recognize and appreciate the difference between the concept of space as it exists outside the theatre and the concept of space as it is used within the theatre The fourth priority is to ingrain in students an understanding of the importance of imagery to the scenographer and the final priority is to teach those technical skills necessary to carry out the concepts of the scenographer
