History, I believe in you Am lie says She peers up at me her eyes alight with passion and pain Even the ocean wasn't wide enough to keep us apart June 6 1944 Gazing over the ocean Eddie sits on the edge of a stone wall overlooking the beach The tide that had swept in now slowly ebbs leaving behind it a beach full of dead There is so much work to be done The thought depresses me but I know that I can't dwell on it too much If I am to survive the war and find my way to Am lie in Paris I have to stay on my guard and be ready for anything At the thought of Paris I lean back Memories of those moments remain with me even now After almost five years of separation the promises we made to each other remain I need to find Am lie First I just have to survive one of the most significant battles we have yet to face the one they are calling D Day Reaching Paris and finding Am lie has never felt so impossible Am lie Paris Mama smiles at me and makes her way into the kitchen The sweet smell of fresh tea and biscuits baking in the oven fills the air I pour a cup for each of us and sit down opposite her cupping my own steaming brew If he is the man you describe I think he will be a man who pursues honour and does his duty for God and his country Mama says stirring the tea ruminatively I can only pray that God keeps watch over him wherever he is A gripping story of love against all odds found in the most hopeless of places This epic page turner inspires us that the pain of parting is nothing to the joy of meeting again Readers will absolutely love No Ocean Wide Enough Exchange Is Not Robbery John M. Chernoff, 2013-02-11 While living in West Africa in the 1970s John Chernoff recorded the stories of Hawa a spirited and brilliant but uneducated woman whose insistence on being respected and treated fairly propelled her ironically into a life of marginality and luck as an ashawo or bar girl Rejecting traditional marriage options and cut off from family support she is like many women in Africa who come to depend on the help they receive from one another from boyfriends and from the men they meet in bars and nightclubs Refusing to see herself as a victim Hawa embraces the freedom her lifestyle permits and seeks the broadest experience available to her In Exchange Is Not Robbery and its predecessor Hustling Is Not Stealing a chronicle of exploitation is transformed by verbal art into an ebullient comedy In Hustling Is Not Stealing Hawa is a playful warrior struggling against circumstances in Ghana and Togo In Exchange Is Not Robbery Hawa returns to her native Burkina Faso where she achieves greater control over her life but faces new difficulties As a woman making sacrifices to live independently Hawa sees her own situation become more complex as she confronts an atmosphere in Burkina Faso that is in some ways more challenging than the one she left behind and the moral ambiguities of her life begin to intensify Combining elements of folklore and memoir Hawa's stories portray the diverse social landscape of West Africa Individually the anecdotes can be funny shocking or poignant assembled together they offer a sweeping critical and satirical vision
