Malatesha Joshi, P.G. Aaron, 2013-05-13 Until about two decades ago the study of writing systems and their relationship to literacy acquisition was sparse and generally modeled after studies of English language learners This situation is now changing As the worldwide demand for literacy continues to grow researchers from different countries with different language backgrounds have begun examining the connection between their writing systems and literacy acquisition This text which derives from a NATO sponsored conference on orthography and literacy brings together the research of 70 scholars from across the world the largest assemblage of such experts to date Their findings are grouped into three parts as follows Part I Literacy Acquisition in Different Writing Systems describes the relationship between orthography and literacy in twenty five orthographic systems This section serves as a handy reference source for understanding the orthographies of languages as diverse as Arabic Chinese English Icelandic Kannada and Kishwahili Part II Literacy Acquisition From a Cross Linguistic Perspective makes direct comparisons of literacy acquisition in English and other orthographic systems The overall conclusion that emerges from these eight chapters is that the depth of an orthographic system does influence literacy acquisition primarily by slowing down the acquisition of reading skills Even so studies show that dyslexic readers can be found across all orthographic systems whether shallow or deep which shows that dyslexia also has internal cognitive and biological components Part III Literacy Acquisition Instructional Perspectives explores literacy acquisition from developmental and instructional perspectives and ends with a look into the future of literacy research This Handbook is appropriate for scholars researchers and graduate students in such diverse fields as cognitive psychology psycholinguistics literacy education English as a second language and communication disorders

Seeking Accountability for Nazi and War Crimes in East and Central Europe Irina Tcherneva, Vanessa Voisin, Eric Le Bourhis, 2022 The thirst for post World War II justice transcended the Cold War and mobilized diverse social groups This is a story of their multilayered and at times conflictual interactions In this edited collection sixteen historians develop a new approach to the trials against persons accused of war crimes and mass murder in Europe during the ascendancy of Nazism and the Second World War 1933 1945 Focusing on the social aspects of the demand for justice and making use of previously underexploited local and international sources contributors put to the test the notion of show trials and explore a range of judicial and political cultures from Germany to the Soviet Union Essays uncover the expectations around accountability and forms of mobilization on the part of a range of citizens involved in the trials survivors witnesses perpetrators Nazi hunters and civic activists In addition to the perspective of these citizens contributors invoke the expertise of reporters filmmakers historians investigators and prosecutors who shaped public representations of justice These shaping efforts the authors show often supported the desire of political authorities to benefit from the publicity of the trials and to contain the spontaneous dissemination of information The book's close examination of interactions between citizens and authorities thus demonstrates the extent and limits of what might be called a coproduction of justice in the process shedding light on the interdependence between historical knowledge and legal prosecution of mass crimes
