Letters To An Unknown Generation:

Yuengling Mark A. Noon, 2015-09-15 Can you name America's oldest brewery? If visions of outsized draft horses plod to mind, you're way off. Instead, head for the mountains of northeastern Pennsylvania. In 1829, in Pottsville, German immigrant D. G. Yuengling set up shop to slake the thirst of immigrants flocking to the region's booming anthracite coalfields. Five generations have steered the family-owned brewery through fires, temperance depressions, Prohibition, and the whims of changing tastes, outlasted hundreds of local competitors, and turned Yuengling from a regional name into a national institution. For 175 years, the hard-working hands on approach of Yuengling have kept it going and growing while thousands of other brands vanished into history's recycling bin. Kick back, relax, and crack open a cool history of Yuengling and Son Inc., America's oldest brewery. It begins with the brewery's founding in 1829 by German immigrant D. G. Yuengling, who saw an opportunity in the region's growing beer-loving immigrant population. Subsequent chapters follow the brewery into the age of bottled beer and advertising, through the dark days of Prohibition, the age of consolidation when a few big names swallowed up or buried most regional brews, and into the age of microbrews when consumers turned away from bland brands in search of a beer with character, leading to Yuengling's resurgence on the national scene. An epilogue gauges the company's current status and immediate future, and a chronology lists key events in the brewery's existence. Notes and copious illustrations supplement this history, which also includes a list of reference works and an index. Letters to an Unknown Generation David G. Yuengling, 1979 Letters on religion and morality, the social order, history, politics, and war The Letters of Henry James. Vol. II Генри Джеймс, 2018-08-04 Chamber's Journal of Popular Literature, Science and Arts, 1862 The Nineteen Letters Samson Raphael Hirsch, Joseph Elias, 1995 The Yale Literary Magazine, 1919 Romantic Generations Lene Østermark-Johansen, 2003 Unlike the first two volumes of ANGLES on the English-Speaking World, this special issue does not originate in a set of conference papers. The idea of compiling a collection of essays on Romanticism emerged from the unusually strong concentration on Romantic studies among the graduate students of the English Department a couple of years ago. This volume places their work in the context of distinguished international scholars of greater seniority, scholars who have become academic contacts through conferences and assessment committees, and whose contributions I am very pleased to be able to include alongside the works of local contributors. The Romantic generations of the title of this volume thus strike a number of different chords: generations of scholars in Romantic studies; conventional divisions of Romantic poets into first, second, and possibly third generations; the self-generative aspect of Romanticism; the awareness of poetic reputation and the image and afterlife of the poet. The collection spans just over a hundred years, from the 1780s to the 1890s, and while not in any way attempting to define Romanticism or raise issues of periodization, the volume allows for the continued existence of Romantic features right until the end of the nineteenth century. Poetry looms large in this issue of ANGLES; apart from Ian Duncan's essay on Hume Scott and the Rise of Fiction, all the other essays are in some way concerned with the Romantic poet and his poetry The Romantic poet is thus represented as a collector and editor of ballads as a political radical and printmaker as other to himself essentially ignorant of the process of poetic composition as a rival and collaborator with other poets or as a poet long dead the subject of successive generations of poetic lament The boundaries between poetry and the visual arts is explored in a couple of the essays indeed the rivalry between portraiture and literature pervades no less than three of the contributions and no matter whether the subject of inquiry is the image of the poet or the image of the poet's mother the Romantic poet displays a high degree of self-consciousness with respect to both literary and visual media Romantic generations generate both selves and others in poetry and portraiture

correspondence to tell their story A Generation at War Nicole Etcheson, 2023-02-10 For all that has been written about the Civil War's impact on the urban northeast and southern home fronts we have until now lacked a detailed picture of how it affected specific communities in the Union's Midwestern heartland Nicole Etcheson offers a deeply researched microhistory of one such community Putnam County Indiana from the Compromise of 1850 to the end of Reconstruction and shows how its citizens responded to and were affected by the war Delving into the everyday life of a small town in one of the nineteenth century's bellwether states A Generation at War considers the Civil War within a much broader chronological context than other accounts It ranges across three decades to show how the issues of the day particularly race and sectionalism temporarily displaced economic and temperance concerns how the racial attitudes of northern whites changed and how a generation of young men and women coped with the transformative experience of war Etcheson interrelates an impressively wide range of topics Through temperance and alcohol she illustrates nativism and class consciousness while through an account of a murder she probes ethnicity politics and gender She reveals how some women wanted to maintain dependence and how the war gave independence to others as pensions allowed them to survive without a male provider And she chronicles the major shift in race relations as the most revolutionary change blacks had been excluded from Indiana in the 1850s but were invited into Putnam County by 1880 Etcheson personalizes all of these issues through human stories bringing to life people previously ignored by history whether veterans demanding recognition of their sacrifice women speaking out against liquor or Copperheads parading against Republicans The introduction of race with the North Carolina Exodusters marks a particularly effective lens for seeing how the idealism unleashed by Lincoln's war influenced the North Etcheson also helps us understand how white Southerners tried to reunify the country on the basis of shared white racism Drawing on personal papers local newspapers pension petitions Exoduster pamphlets and more Etcheson demonstrates how microhistory helps give new meaning to larger events A Generation at War opens a new window on the impact of the Civil War on the agrarian North
