Mother Daughter Me Katie Hafner, 2014-04-08 The complex, deeply binding relationship between mothers and daughters is brought vividly to life in Katie Hafner's remarkable memoir, an exploration of the year she and her mother Helen spent working through and triumphing over a lifetime of unresolved emotions. Dreaming of a year in Provence with her mother, Katie urges Helen to move to San Francisco to live with her and Zo, Katie's teenage daughter. Katie and Zo had become a mother-daughter team strong enough that Katie thought to absorb the arrival of a seventy-seven year old woman set in her ways. Filled with fairy tale hope that she and her mother would become friends and that Helen would grow close to her exceptional granddaughter, Katie embarked on an experiment in intergenerational living that she would soon discover was filled with land mines: memories of her parents' painful divorce, of her mother's drinking, of dislocating moves back and forth across the country, and of Katie's own widowhood and bumpy recovery. Helen, for her part, was also holding difficult issues at bay. How these three women from such different generations learn to navigate their challenging, turbulent, and ultimately healing journey together makes for riveting reading. By turns heartbreaking and funny, and always insightful, Katie Hafner's brave and loving book answers questions about the universal truths of family that are central to the lives of so many. Praise for Mother Daughter Me The most raw, honest, and engaging memoir I've read in a long time. KJ Dell'Antonia, The New York Times A brilliant, funny, poignant, and wrenching story of three generations under one roof, unlike anything I have ever read. Abraham Verghese, author of Cutting for Stone Weaving past with present, anecdote with analysis, Katie Hafner's riveting account of multigenerational living and mother-daughter frictions of love and forgiveness is devoid of self-pity and unafraid of self-blame. Hafner is a bright and appealing heroine. Cathi Hanauer, Elle A frank and searching account. Currents of grief, guilt, longing, and forgiveness flow through the compelling narrative. Steven Winn, San Francisco Chronicle A touching saga that shines. We see how years-old unresolved emotions manifest. Lindsay Deutsch, USA Today Hafner's memoir shines a light on nurturing deficits repeated through generations and will lead many readers to relive their own struggles with forgiveness. Erica Jong, People An unusually graceful story, one that balances honesty and tact. Hafner narrates the events so adeptly that they feel enlightening. Harper's Heartbreakingly honest, yet not without hope, and flashes of wry humor. Kirkus Reviews An emotionally raw memoir examining the delicate, inevitable shift from dependence to independence and back again. O The Oprah Magazine Ten Titles to Pick Up Now

Freedom From Violence Learn From Experience Rismiyati E. Koesma, Ilsa Nelwan, Fitri Ariyanti Abidin, Peter R. Nelwan, Marjorie Ruth Suanda, Sanata Dharma University Press, 2025-07-25 This book describes cases handled by the Indonesian Network of Independent Volunteers JaRI ranging from the types of violence that occur most of which are committed against women such as domestic violence committed by husbands against their wives violence committed during romantic relationships also violence committed against children both boys and girls Freedom from violence is about what needs to be done to prevent violence from spreading further Actions are needed and these actions should be carefully considered as individuals collectives or as concrete measures by the government The authors of this book include three psychologists Tetty Rismiyati is a member of JaRI a practicing psychologist and has already handled VAW cases since 2000 Fitri Ariyanti is also a practicing psychologist with more than 21 years of experience Peter Rumengan Nelwan is a retired psychologist who undertakes developmental research activities and Ilsa Nelwan is a retired Public Health expert and one of the founders of JaRI with more than 25 years of community family health experience in Indonesia and eight years of international experience as a WHO South East Asia Region professional expert The book contains ten cases that illustrate how violence can be perpetrated against minors against innocent teenagers and even against adults by their husbands or their acquaintances These examples show that violence can occur anywhere perpetrated by the people closest to the victim for example husbands against wives parents against children religious leaders against their students and also teachers against their students This book describes how violence can occur suddenly ranging from mild acts of violence to severe acts of violence From these cases it is also revealed that violence is also committed online indicating that technological advancements have been utilized to commit acts of violence The concrete actions taken by JaRI when receiving victims of violent acts are described so that the next steps can be determined The actions taken include medical treatments to provide immediate treatment for the violent acts or a medical examination that will be required when the case is brought to court The most common action is psychological counselling usually carried out two weeks after the case occurred with the aim of making the victim feel more comfortable and enabling further action to be taken. For certain cases they will continue to a hearing in court to gain justice for the victim of violence. Even though it is difficult, many cases can be undertaken until completed, mainly when the victim is willing to have the case handled over what usually takes a long period of time. Violence involves at least three parties: the victim or survivor, the perpetrator, and at times there is also a witness. Because of that, as part of the prevention strategy, this book is aimed primarily at young people so that they can understand and appreciate this issue. To be more specific, this book wants to invite young people to:

- First, get to know the environment, the situation, and what kind of individuals who sooner or later can make them a victim of violence.
- Second, enable them to identify whether they themselves have the potential to become perpetrators of violence and what efforts they can make to prevent themselves from becoming perpetrators.
- Third, prepare them to take relevant preventive measures when faced with situations that have the potential to cause violence to others.

By referring to the ten cases presented, the analysis of violence prevention that will be the main focus of this book is as follows:

- First, by trying to analyze and elaborate on various potentials or possibilities of violence against women and children, including parenting style, patriarchal culture, power relations, online media.
- Second, identifying the characteristics of those who have the potential to become perpetrators of violence against women and children, including those who have power, those who have been victims.
- Third, identifying the parties who have the potential to prevent violence: parents, health workers, teachers, friends, older and younger siblings.

This book consists of three parts. Part One describes ten cases inspired by various cases handled by the counsellors of JaRI. The cases have been selected from about 1 800 cases handled by JaRI and are considered representative of most types of cases. We consider it necessary to present the reality of violence that has occurred in order to give readers a clear picture of how severe and complex violence enacted by one human being on another can be in this case against children and women, so that prevention efforts become truly important. As a brief overview, the cases consist of:

1. sexual violence committed by youth teenagers against children.
2. victims of sexual violence who were lured by their peers.
3. violence committed by parents against children in the form of improper parenting.
4. sexual violence committed by a father against his daughters.
5. verbal violence committed by a husband against his wife.
6. a young person trapped in digital violence as a result of his mother restraining him from real life relationships.
7. violence committed by a husband against his wife in the form of restricting her freedom.
8. violence in dating involving the threat of spreading inappropriate photos on social media.
9. violence committed by an adult against a young child.
10. sexual violence committed by an adult against a teenager.

Each case presented is followed by a discussion comprising a case overview, services provided by JaRI, an analysis, and prevention efforts. Part Two is a summary and discussion of the cases looked at from four perspectives: namely, parenting, communication within the family, gender equality, and online media. Part Three describes recommendations for practical prevention in the following four topics:

1. Age appropriate communication about sexuality between parents and children.
2. Communication between partners, parents,

children and peers 3 Gender equality 4 Internet literacy
