The Drawing of the Mark of Cain Dik Van Arkel, 2009 These are big questions and in The Drawing of the Mark of Cain they are addressed head on The author has devoted his entire career as a distinguished social historian to resolving these and similar problems He has sought his answers through a highly original consistently analytical process of historical conjecture and refutation The Mexican Economy, 1870-1930 Jeff Bortz, Stephen H. Haber, 2002 Studying the interaction of political and economic institutions in Mexico during the period of 1870-1930 this book shows how institutional change can foment economic growth Artists and Society in Germany, 1850-1914 Robin Lenman, 1997 In times past everyday business might mean making a trip to the pawnbroker giving a loan to a trusted friend or selling off a coat all to make ends meet Both women and men engaged in this daily budgeting but women's roles were especially important in achieving some level of comfort and avoiding penury In some communities the daily practices in place in the seventeenth century persisted into the twentieth whilst other groups adopted new ways such as using numbers to chart domestic affairs and turning to the savings banks that appeared in the nineteenth century These strategies promised respectability and greater access to new consumer goods better clothes and finer furnishings accompanied a newly disciplined behaviour Therefore in the material world of the past and in the changing habits of earlier generations lie crucial turning points This book explores these previously under researched patterns and practices that gave shape to modern consumer society Hybrid Rule and State Formation Shelley Hurt, Ronnie Lipschutz, 2015-06-26 Neoliberalism has been the reigning ideology of our era For the past four decades almost every real world event of any consequence has been traced to the supposedly omnipresent influence of neoliberalism Instead this book argues that states across the world have actually grown in scope and reach The authors in this volume contest the view that the past three decades have been marked by the diminution of the state in the face of neoliberalism They argue instead that we are witnessing a new phase of state formation which revolves around hybrid rule that is a more expansive form of state formation that works through privatization and seeks pacification and depoliticization as instrumental to enhancing state power Contributors argue that the process of hybridization and hybrid rule point towards a convergence on a more authoritarian capitalist regime type possibly but not necessarily more closely aligned with the Beijing model one toward which even the United States with its penchant for surveillance and discipline appears to be moving This volume will shed new light on evolving public private relations and the changing nature of power and political authority in the 21st century and will be of interest to students and scholars of IPE international relations and political theory
