The Snake with Golden Braids Stephen G. Bunker, 2006-01-01 The Snake With Golden Braids seeks to understand how local inhabitants of the extraordinarily rugged Andean topography of Huanquite Peru came to understand their landscape and then build and maintain a system of irrigation ditches across it The Huanquiteño's original solution a conceptually and architecturally complex irrigation system was abandoned after the Spanish conquest of Peru and replaced by a simpler yet still complex system which is still in place today Stephen G Bunker combines a history of these systems with a rethinking of the local myths legends and environment to help make sense of the land and its uses This book follows his intellectual and spiritual journey to learn not just about building and managing irrigation ditches but about the very different ways of knowing the environment and the spirits of the earth that informed and empowered the original builders Bunker's first hand experience and research will prove an invaluable asset to sociologists anthropologists and environmentalists Of Golden
