Mining Multimedia and Complex Data Osmar R. Zaiane, Simeon Simoff, Chabane Djeraba, 2003-10-23 1 Workshop Theme Digital multimedia differs from previous forms of combined media in that the bits that represent text images animations and audio video and other signals can be treated as data by computer programs One facet of this diverse data in terms of underlying models and formats is that it is synchronized and integrated hence it can be treated as integral data records Such records can be found in a number of areas of human endeavour Modern medicine generates huge amounts of such digital data Another ample is architectural design and the related architecture engineering and construction AEC industry Virtual communities in the broad sense of this word which includes any communities mediated by digital technologies are another example where generated data constitutes an integral data record Such data may include data about member profiles the content generated by the virtual community and communication data in different formats including e-mail chat records SMS messages videoconferencing records Not all multimedia data is so diverse An example of less diverse data but data that is larger in terms of the collected amount is that generated by video surveillance systems where each integral data record roughly consists of a set of time stamped images the video frames In any case the collection of such integral data records constitutes a multimedia data set The challenge of extracting meaningful patterns from such data sets has led to the research and development in the area of multimedia data mining
