Enterprising Images John Vincent Jezierski, 2000 The story of the most prolific African American photographers in North America. From its beginnings in York, Pennsylvania in 1847 until the death of Wallace L. Goodridge in Saginaw, Michigan in 1922 the Goodridge Brothers Studio was the most significant and enduring African American photographic establishment in North America. In Enterprising Images John Vincent Jezierski tells the story of one of America's first families of photography documenting the history of the Goodridge studio for three quarters of a century. The existence of more than one thousand Goodridge photographs in all formats and the family's professional and personal activism enrich the portrait that emerges of this extraordinary family. Weaving photographic and regional history with the narrative of a family whose lives paralleled the social and political happenings of the country Jezierski provides the reader with a complex family biography for those interested in regional and African American as well as photographic history. /Archeology of the Future: African Cinemas and Utopias Viviane Azarian, Ute Fendler, Aminata C. Mbaye, 2018-07-09

Depuis ses origines le cinéma est lié à l'histoire dans une double perspective rétrospective et prospective qu'il soit geste d'appropriation du passé par le présent ou qu'il soit mouvement d'anticipation du futur. Ainsi la création filmique en Afrique se situe dans la tension entre d'une part l'archéologie de l'histoire et le présent et d'autre part l'avenir et l'utopie. Les contributions invitent à réfléchir la dimension préemptive pour reprendre une expression de Patrice Nganang des cinémas africains leur capacité à pondérer l'urgence en même temps qu'à anticiper. Elles s'articulent galement autour de l'idée d'une continuité temporelle repérable dans les formes cinématographiques entre passé présent et futur selon la double modalité de l'actuel et du virtuel.

Since its beginnings cinema has been connected with history and this in a double respect in a retrospective perspective appropriating the past by remembering or in a prospective pre-emptive in the words of Patrice Nganang perspective that anticipates future. Thus the making of films in Africa is situated between archaeology history and remembrance on the one hand and future and utopia on the other hand. The contributions analyse the prospective dimension of African films the ability to react to important questions of its respective times as well as to anticipate them as films are based on the idea of a time continuum linking past present and future using a documentary and a virtual modality.

Cognitive Internet of Things: Frameworks, Tools and Applications Huimin Lu, 2019-02-18 This book provides insights into the research in the fields of artificial intelligence in combination with Internet of Things (IoT) technologies. Today the integration of artificial intelligence and IoT technologies is attracting considerable interest from both researchers and developers from academic fields and industries around the globe. It is foreseeable that the next generation of IoT research will focus on artificial intelligence beyond artificial intelligence approaches. The rapidly growing numbers of artificial intelligence algorithms and big data solutions have significantly increased the number of potential applications for IoT technologies but they have also created new challenges for the artificial intelligence community. This book shares the latest scientific advances in this area.
