

— 5 minutes to go —

The radio had been stripped by the nips - the three women dressed simply, neatly - nice dresses (no socks or shoes).

This is it —

Here's to the prettiest, Here's to the Wittiest,
Here is to the truest of all who are true, Here's to the neatest one,
Here's to the sweetest one,
Here's to them all in one - Here's to You, Richard

Again I say - Happy New Year!
Betty - May this year bring you all that is good - May it bring lasting health to your lovely body - May it bring you happiness - May it bring you peace of mind - May it bring you all those little things which are just sort of half wishes -

Would, that I could grant them all - Your slightest wish - is my Solemn Command —

Pedro Noguera Professor The Steinhardt

School of Education New York University Letters to a Serious Education President underscores the brilliance of Sarason's observations about what is and continues to be missing in how we conceptualize and hence implement schooling in our society. Indeed, Sarason is calling for a different education, one that enlivens the curiosity and lifelong learning of all children and their teachers. Rhona Weinstein, Professor, University of California, Berkeley. In this new edition of his original insightful collection of letters to the first president of the 21st century education luminary Seymour B. Sarason, details how school reformers still have difficulty examining the differences between contexts of productive and unproductive learning. Originally written nearly 13 years ago, these letters are even more relevant in today's era of extreme mandates and accountability measures. It is in this context where Sarason's acute insight into why school reforms are failing that we must turn to the fundamental question of how we are teaching and supporting all students. Sarason's seemingly simple focus emphasizes that we must start with what and where children are, inspiring and encouraging their natural curiosity for learning. Detailed within is coverage of: An educational agenda beginning with children; The need for both repair and prevention in education; How classrooms extinguish curiosity; Educator preparation program reform; School downsizing; Dropping out as a response to an uncaring school culture; A critique of the No Child Left Behind Act; and more. Sarason's analysis and powerful letters are packed with humor, common sense, practical advice, and recommendations for reaching students in today's classrooms. They distinguish between the typical rhetoric of educational change and the necessary actions that affect present and future generations of students. Prologue ,2006 Army ,1993
