Think Again Stanley Fish, 2015-10-20 From 1995 to 2013 Stanley Fish's provocative New York Times columns consistently generated passionate discussion and debate In Think Again he has assembled almost one hundred of his best columns into a thematically arranged collection with a substantial new introduction that explains his intention in writing these pieces and offers an analysis of why they provoked so much reaction. Some readers reported being frustrated when they couldn't figure out where Fish, one of America's most influential thinkers, stood on the controversies he addressed in the essays, from atheism and affirmative action to plagiarism and postmodernism. But as Fish says, that is the point: Opinions are cheap; you can get them anywhere. Instead of offering just another set of them, Fish analyzes and dissects the arguments put forth by different sides in debates over free speech, identity politics, the gun lobby, and other hot button topics in order to explain how their arguments work or don't work. In short, these are essays that teach you not what to think but how to think more clearly. Brief and accessible yet challenging, these essays provide all the hard-edged intellectual, cultural, and political analysis one expects from Fish. At the same time, the collection includes a number of revealing and even poignant autobiographical essays in which, as Fish says, readers will learn about his anxieties, his aspirations, his eccentricities, his foibles, his father, and his obsessions: Frank Sinatra, Ted Williams, basketball, and Jews. Reflecting the wide-ranging interests of one of today's leading critics, this is Fish's broadest and most engaging book to date.

Who Did It First? Bob Leszczak, 2014-07-10. Everybody has to start somewhere. Businessmen start on the ground floor and try to work their way up the corporate ladder. Baseball players bide their time in the minor leagues, wishing for an opportunity to move up and play in the majors. Musical compositions aren't very different: some songs just don't climb the charts the first time they're recorded. However, with perseverance, the ideal singer, the right chemistry, impeccable timing, vigorous promotion, and a little luck, these songs can become very famous. So writes Bob Leszczak in the opening pages of Who Did It First: Great Rock and Roll Cover Songs and Their Original Artists. In this third and final volume to the Who Did It First series, readers explore the hidden history of the most famous, indeed, legendary rock songs and standards. Did you know that the Wild Ones had a Wild Thing before the Troggs? Were you aware that it took a second shot for Double Shot of My Baby's Love to make the charts? Had you heard that Guy Villari and the Regents dated Barbara Ann five years before the Beach Boys? Were you privy to the fact that there was Hanky Panky going on with Ellie Greenwich and the Raindrops, as well as the Summits, before Tommy James and the Shondells made the song a number 1 classic? Some of the information contained within these pages will shock, rattle, and roll you. You may fancy yourself a music expert, but this third and last in a series of titles devoted to the story of great songs and their revival as great covers is filled with eye openers. In many instances, one's eyes will open even wider as a result of the list of cover artists, with Paul Anka's remake of Nirvana's Smells Like Teen Spirit leading the pack. Who Did It First: Great Rock and Roll Cover Songs and Their Original Artists is the perfect playlist builder. So whether quizzing friends at a party, answering a radio station contest, or just satisfying an insatiable curiosity to know who really did do it first, this work is a must-have.
