The Photographic Studios of Europe Henry Baden Pritchard,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1882 edition Excerpt It will be seen at once how quickly an arrangement of this kind works In the first place the light comes down almost vertical and therefore it is the best of all lights for the purpose In cloudy weather the light is not interfered with in the least but in bright sunshine a screen of opal glass is employed The assistant slips the negative to be copied into the camera he focuses at A measures with a quarter plate in his hand the size of the head for all heads are enlarged to this size and then calls for a sensitized plate A lad whose duty it is to supply him with these withdraws a collodionised plate from the bath drains it and simply places it on the table A There is no dark slide required no loss of time involved in fitting the plate into an apparatus of any kind it is bare and moist and laid on the table An exposure of two minutes suffices and the film is then carried off for development All twenty four lenses are of the same make No 1b Dallmeyer s all the plates are coated with the same collodion and all are treated with the same developer c Consequently the work of all assistants should be the same if they work well and conscientiously The Messrs Taylor thoroughly believe in system and they have here initiated a self checking method that cannot fail to work satisfactorily We have been talking about collodion transfers only but opalcoated plates are here produced under the same conditions But we ought perhaps to go back a moment to the preparation of the glass c The chief difficulty in making collodion transfers or collodion enlargements on opal as many of our readers know to their cost is the tendency of these to stain and on this point we had some conversation with our good friend the Notre Europe ,2008 Fourth International Monuments Photographic Experience Conseil de l'Europe,1999 L' Europe des images ,1992 Album of Photographic Views of Europe , New Europe Paul Graham,Urs Stahel,1993 This is the first U S release of this widely praised book New Europe seeks to dig beneath the utopian dream of a united continent arising to face the dawn of the 21st century Paul Graham s photographs reflect on the inescapable shadow of history that falls over each nation s conscience from the dictatorships of Franco and Hitler to the Holocaust and the Irish conflict Thus burden is interwoven with a questioning of the banality of modern day consumption led culture Neither a narrative nor a conventional documentary this body of photographs builds into a visual poem that resonates across the social and psychological landscape of Europe today
