

El concepto de nomenclatura

Marta Concepción Ayala Castro

La lexicografía española cuenta desde sus orígenes con una serie de obras de tono menor que, como tantas otras, no han recibido la atención que merecen.

La falta de conocimiento de estas obras no se debe tanto a que su concepto no está debidamente aclarado, o a lo que han representado en la historia de la lexicografía, como al escaso interés que han suscitado entre los investigadores por ser repertorios léxicos de un tono menor, y por la escasa atracción que han despertado en quienes se dedican a estudiar las gramáticas, a las que van asociadas de un modo estrecho.

Se trata de repertorios léxicos en más de una lengua que ordenan sus materiales de acuerdo con el contenido o con la cosa designada y no con la forma de los términos consignados. Toman como punto de partida el objeto conocido y como punto de llegada la palabra; recogen el vocabulario usual de una lengua, con el fin de enseñar los rudimentos de un idioma; por ello, su extensión es breve en la mayoría de los casos, y pocas veces alcanzan la extensión de los repertorios alfabéticos coetáneos.

Estas clasificaciones, que tradicionalmente han venido denominándose Nomenclaturas, se difundieron por toda Europa desde el siglo XVI hasta nuestros días.

La justificación de su nacimiento queda determinada por la tardía aparición del orden alfabético; antes, el mundo y las palabras que servían para designarlo debían ser ordenados por los criterios que determinaban la realidad extralingüística o la idea que se tenía de ella. El incremento de este tipo de vocabularios se debió, quizás, al interés por la enseñanza de lenguas extranjeras que se produjo durante el Renacimiento en todos los países, que dio lugar también a la producción de diccionarios de lenguas vulgares, gramáticas y diálogos plurilingües.

Para nosotros, el interés de las Nomenclaturas estriba en su forma de distribuir el material léxico de acuerdo con el contenido y no con la forma, diferente del criterio que adoptan otras clasificaciones de tipo semántico como los diccionarios ideológicos, por una parte, y los de sinónimos, analógicos y voces relacionadas, por otra.

Estas obras dan cuenta de las «cosas» y de las palabras que sirven para nombrarlas, y las agrupan según criterios diferentes, pero principalmente basados sobre el lugar en el que las cosas se presentan (p. ej. las partes de una ciudad, los muebles de las habitaciones de una casa, etc.), sobre el uso al cual se destinan (vestidos para hombres, división de los utensilios en relación a su uso, etc.), o sobre situaciones en las que ciertos conceptos tienen relación entre sí; razones por las cuales suelen presentar, principalmente, substantivos de designación concreta y no muchos substantivos de carácter abstracto, adjetivos o verbos.

Tradicionalmente, estos repertorios han clasificado las palabras siguiendo un orden más o menos lógico o filosófico, con el que se pretende dar una visión organizada del mundo a través de la cosa designada. En muchos de ellos se sigue el orden teocéntrico medieval, comenzando por Dios, las divinidades, el Universo, y terminando por la muerte; otros, siguen el orden antropocéntrico renacentista con el hombre como punto de partida, las partes del cuerpo humano, los vestidos, etc., y las fiestas y juegos como temas finales. Esta forma de clasificar el léxico es compatible con los re-
