Architecture of the Islamic World Ernst J. Grube, 1978 Architecture of the Islamic West Jonathan M. Bloom, 2020-06-30 An authoritative survey situating some of the Western world's most renowned buildings within a millennium of Islamic history Some of the most outstanding examples of world architecture such as the Mosque of Córdoba the ceiling of the Cappella Palatina in Palermo the Giralda tower in Seville and the Alhambra Palace in Granada belong to the Western Islamic tradition This architectural style flourished for over a thousand years along the southern and western shores of the Mediterranean between Tunisia and Spain from the 8th century through the 19th blending new ideas with local building practices from across the region Jonathan M Bloom's Architecture of the Islamic West introduces readers to the full scope of this vibrant tradition presenting both famous and little known buildings in six countries in North Africa and southern Europe It is richly illustrated with photographs specially commissioned architectural plans and historical documents The result is a personally guided tour of Islamic architecture led by one of the finest scholars in the field and a powerful testament to Muslim cultural achievement

The Transnational Mosque Kishwar Rizvi, 2015-10-08 Kishwar Rizvi drawing on the multifaceted history of the Middle East offers a richly illustrated analysis of the role of transnational mosques in the construction of contemporary Muslim identity As Rizvi explains transnational mosques are structures built through the support of both government sponsorship whether in the home country or abroad and diverse transnational networks By concentrating on mosques especially those built at the turn of the twenty first century as the epitome of Islamic architecture Rizvi elucidates their significance as sites for both the validation of religious praxis and the construction of national and religious ideologies Rizvi delineates the transnational religious political economic and architectural networks supporting mosques in Saudi Arabia Iran Turkey and the United Arab Emirates as well as in countries within their spheres of influence such as Pakistan Syria and Turkmenistan She discerns how the buildings feature architectural designs that traverse geographic and temporal distances gesturing to far flung places and times for inspiration Digging deeper however Rizvi reveals significant diversity among the mosques whether in a Wahabi Sunni kingdom a Shi i theocratic government or a republic balancing secularism and moderate Islam that repudiates representations of Islam as a monolith Mosques reveal alliances and contests for influence among multinational corporations nations and communities of belief Rizvi shows and her work demonstrates how the built environment is a critical resource for understanding culture and politics in the contemporary Middle East and the Islamic world

Art and Architecture in the Islamic Tradition Mohammed Hamdouni Alami,2013-12-20 What is art in the sense of the Islamic tradition Mohammed Hamdouni Alami argues that Islamic art has historically been excluded from Western notions of art that the Western aesthetic tradition s preoccupation with the human body and the ban on the representation of the human body in Islam has meant that Islamic and Western art have been perceived as inherently at odds However the move away from this anthropomorphic aesthetic in Western art movements such as modern abstract and constructivist painting have presented the opportunity for new ways of viewing and evaluating Islamic art and architecture This book questions the very idea of art predicated on the anthropocentric bias of classical art and the corollary exclusion of Islamic art from the status of art It addresses a central question in post classical aesthetic theory in as much as the advent of modern abstract and constructivist painting have shown that art can be other than the representation of the human body that art is not neutral aesthetic contemplation but it is fraught with power and violence and that the presupposition of classical art was not a universal truth but the assumption of a specific cultural and historical set of practices and vocabularies Based on close readings of classical Islamic literature philosophy poetry medicine and theology along with contemporary Western art theory the author uncovers a specific Islamic theoretical vision of art and architecture based on poetic practice politics cosmology and desire In particular it traces the effects of decoration and architectural planning on the human soul as well as the centrality of the gaze in this poetic view in Arabic nazar while examining its surprising similarity to modern theories of the gaze Through this double gesture moving critically between two traditions the author brings Islamic thought and aesthetics back into the realm of visibility addressing the lack of recognition in comparison with other historical periods and traditions This is an important step toward a critical analysis of the contemporary debate around the revival of Islamic architectural identity a debate intricately embedded within opposing Islamic political and social projects throughout the world

The Art and Architecture of Islam 1250-1800 Sheila S. Blair,Jonathan M. Bloom,1996-09-25 They discuss for example how the universal caliphs of the first six centuries gave way to regional rulers and how in this new world order Iranian forms techniques and motifs played a dominant role in the artistic life of most of the Muslim world the one exception was the Maghrib an area protected from the full brunt of the Mongol invasions where traditional models continued to inspire artists and patrons By the sixteenth century say the authors the eastern Mediterranean under the Ottomans and the area of northern India under the Mughals had become more powerful and the Iranian models of early Ottoman and Mughal art gradually gave way to distinct regional and imperial styles constructivist painting have presented the opportunity for new ways of viewing and evaluating Islamic art and architecture. This book questions the very idea of art predicated on the anthropocentric bias of classical art and the corollary exclusion of Islamic art from the status of art. It addresses a central question in post classical aesthetic theory in as much as the advent of modern abstract and constructivist painting have shown that art can be other than the representation of the human body that art is not neutral aesthetic contemplation but it is fraught with power and violence and that the presupposition of classical art was not a universal truth but the assumption of a specific cultural and historical set of practices and vocabularies. Based on close readings of classical Islamic literature philosophy poetry medicine and theology along with contemporary Western art theory the author uncovers a specific Islamic theoretical vision of art and architecture based on poetic practice politics cosmology and desire. In particular it traces the effects of decoration and architectural planning on the human soul as well as the centrality of the gaze in this poetic view in Arabic nazar while examining its surprising similarity to modern theories of the gaze. Through this double gesture moving critically between two traditions the author brings Islamic thought and aesthetics back into the realm of visibility addressing the lack of recognition in comparison with other historical periods and traditions. This is an important step toward a critical analysis of the contemporary debate around the revival of Islamic architectural identity a debate intricately embedded within opposing Islamic political and social projects throughout the world.
