

Trevor Evans has lived in the old county of Monmouthshire all his life. He developed an interest in wild flowers in the 1940s, and was appointed Recorder for vice-county 33 Monmouthshire by the Botanical Society of the British Isles in 1972. Following his retirement from teaching in 1984, he and his band of botanists have recorded the plants in the county to produce the first Flora of Monmouthshire to show the distribution of plants using maps. This book describes the flora as we know it today, and tells of the changes seen during his lifetime.
