political perspective Quill R Kukla offers the first systematic philosophical investigation of the nature of city life and city dwellers The book draws on empirical and ethnographic work in geography anthropology urban planning and several other disciplines in order to explore the impact that cities have on their dwellers and that dwellers have on their cities It begins with a philosophical exploration of spatially embodied agency and of the specific forms of agency and spatiality that are distinctive of urban life It explores how gentrification is enacted and experienced at the level of embodied agency arguing that gentrifying spaces are contested territories that shape and are shaped by their dwellers The book then moves to an exploration of repurposed cities which are cities materially designed to support one sociopolitical order but in which that order collapsed leaving new dwellers to use the space in new ways Through detailed original ethnography of the repurposed cities of Berlin and Johannesburg Kukla makes the case that in repurposed cities we can see vividly how material spaces shape and constrain the agency and experience of dwellers while dwellers creatively shape the spaces they inhabit in accordance with their needs The book concludes with a reconsideration of the right to the city asking what would be involved in creating a city that enabled the agency and flourishing of all its diverse inhabitants Be a Film Editor Alix crucial role of the speed of information processing in the brain in determining reading fluency in both normal and dyslexic readers Part I explains fluency in reading from both traditional and modern perspectives Fluency has historically been viewed as the outcome of other reading related factors and has often been seen as a convenient measure of reading skills This book however argues that fluency has a strong impact on other aspects of reading and plays a central role in the entire reading process Part II deals with the determinants of reading fluency Chief among these is the speed of information processing in the brain Using both behavioral and electrophysiological evidence the book systematically examines the features of processing speed in the various brain systems involved in reading visual orthographic auditory phonological and semantic and shows how speed of processing affects fluency in reading Part III deals with the complex issues of cross modal integration and specifically with the need for effective synchronization of the brain processes involved in reading It puts forward the Synchronization Hypothesis and discusses the role of the Asynchrony Phenomenon as a major factor in dyslexia Finally it summarizes research on manipulating reading rate by means of the Acceleration method providing evidence for a possible intervention aimed at reducing Asynchrony Key features of this outstanding new book include Expanded View of Fluency Reading fluency is seen as both a dependent and an independent Variable Currently available books focus on reading rate solely as the outcome of other factors whereas this volume stresses that it is both an outcome and a cause Information Processing Focus Fluency itself is determined to a large extent by a more general factor namely speed of processing in the brain The book presents wide ranging evidence for individual differences in speed of processing across many subpopulations Brain Synchronization Focus The book posits a new theory arguing that effective reading requires synchronization of the different brain systems visual orthographic auditory phonological and semantic Research Based Interventions Interventions to enhance fluency and thereby reading skills in general are presented in detail Author Expertise Zvia Breznitz is Head of the Department of Learning Disabilities and Director of the Laboratory for Neurocognitive Research at Haifa University in Israel where she has been researching this topic for over a decade This book is appropriate for researchers and advanced students in reading dyslexia learning disabilities cognitive psychology and neuropsychology Endurance in Sport R.
