

A portrait of Anwar el-Sadat, the former President of Egypt, is the background of the book cover. He is shown from the chest up, wearing a dark suit, a white shirt, and a patterned tie. He has a mustache and is holding a smoking pipe in his mouth. His hands are clasped in front of him. The background is a soft-focus outdoor scene with greenery and a building.

Portrayal and the Search for Identity Marcia Pointon,2013-02-15 We are surrounded with portraits from the cipher like portrait of a president on a bank note to security pass photos from images of politicians in the media to Facebook from galleries exhibiting Titian or Leonardo to contemporary art deploying the self image as with Jeff Koons or Cindy Sherman In antiquity portraiture was of major importance in the exercise of power Today it remains not only a part of everyday life but also a crucial way for artists to define themselves in relation to their environment and their contemporaries In Portrayal and the Search for Identity Marcia Pointon investigates how we view and understand portraiture as a genre and how portraits function as artworks within social and political networks Likeness is never a straightforward matter as we rarely have the subject of a portrait as a point of comparison Featuring familiar canonical works and little known portraits Portrayal seeks to unsettle notions of portraiture as an art of convention a reassuring reflection of social realities Pointon invites readers to consider how identity is produced pictorially and where likeness is registered apart from in a face In exploring these issues she addresses wide ranging problems such as the construction of masculinity in dress representations of slaves and self portraiture in relation to mortality

In Search of Self in India and Japan Alan Roland,2021-04-13 Drawing on work with Indian and Japanese patients a prominent American psychoanalyst explores inner worlds that are markedly different from the Western psyche A series of fascinating case studies illustrates Alan Roland s argument the familial self rooted in the subtle emotional hierarchical relationships of the family and group predominates in Indian and Japanese psyches and contrasts strongly with the Western individualized self In perceptive and sympathetic terms Roland describes the emotional problems that occur when Indians and Japanese encounter Western culture and the resulting successful integration of new patterns that he calls the expanding self Of particular interest are descriptions of the special problems of women in changing society and of the paradoxical relationship of the spiritual self of Indians and Japanese to the familial self Also described is Roland s own response to the broadening of his emotional and intellectual horizons as he talked to patients and supervised therapists in India and Japan As we were coming in for a landing to Bombay he writes the plane banked so sharply that when I supposedly looked down all I could see were the stars while if I looked up there were the lights of the city This is the world turned upside down that he describes so eloquently in this book What he has learned will fascinate those who wish to deepen their understanding of a different way of being
