

The background of the book cover is a detailed landscape painting. It depicts a wide, green valley with a winding river or stream in the foreground. In the distance, there are rolling hills and mountains under a sky with soft, white clouds. The overall style is reminiscent of 19th-century landscape art.

Pigeon River Country Dale Clarke Franz,2013-02-13 The long awaited new edition of a classic offers memories myths and meanings of the largest contiguous piece of wild land in Michigan's Lower Peninsula This updated edition explores more deeply why and how the outdoors moves and compels us It's a book about mice who sing elk who wear collars deer who kiss and birds who could dictate their compositions to Mozart It's about the human species interacting in generous and sometimes misguided ways with the rest of life It's about men trying to ripen pinecones into pineapples and women taking better aim with a revolver than expected It's about poetry from Mary Oliver Lao Tzu and Theodore Roethke and seeing hawks dive in a night sky or feeling oil geologists shake the earth below It's about finding fish dead in the river by the thousands and crouching behind a stump to watch beaver build a dwelling While this book considers life beyond the boundaries of Pigeon River Country it is steeped in the specifics of a place that lives mostly on its own instead of human terms The Pigeon River Country is a remote northern forest ecologically distinct from most of the United States Laced with waterways it has a storied past Dale Clarke Franz has collected personal accounts from various people intrigued with the Pigeon River Country including loggers conservationists mill workers campers even the young Ernest Hemingway who said he loved the forest better than anything in the world There are comprehensive discussions of the area s flora and fauna guides to trails and camping sites and photos showcasing the changing face of this hidden national treasure Narrating the Landscape Matthew N. Johnston, 2016-04-14 The American nineteenth century saw a largely rural nation confined to the Eastern Seaboard conquer a continent and spawn increasingly dense commercial metropolises This time of unprecedented territorial and economic growth has long been thought to find its most sweeping visual equivalent in the period s landscape paintings But as Matthew N Johnston shows the age s defining features were just as clearly captured in and motivated by visual material mass produced through innovations in printing technology Illustrated railroad and steamboat guidebooks tourist literature reports of geological surveys ethnographic studies all of these new print vehicles brought new meanings to the interplay of time space and place as American continental expansion peaked Instrumental to that project of national and industrial growth these commercial and scientific publications introduced readers travelers and citizens to a changing North American landscape made more accessible by new travel routes blazed between 1825 and 1875 More fundamentally as Johnston shows in his nuanced analysis by simulating new temporal frameworks through their presentation of landscape these print materials established new models of consumption and new kinds of knowledge critical to expansion Johnston relates these sources to traditional art historical subjects the landscapes of the Hudson River school luminist paintings by John Kensett and William Trost Richards Native portraits painted by George Catlin and photographs by Timothy O Sullivan to show how key discourses associated with expansion shifted away from picturesque strategies pairing imagery and narrative toward entirely new forms that gave temporal structure to viewers experience of an emerging modernity Revealing the crucial role of print and visual culture in shaping the nineteenth century United States Narrating the Landscape offers fresh insight into the landscapes Americans beheld and imagined in this formative era Animal Subjects Jodey Castricano, 2008-05-20 Although Cultural Studies has directed sustained attacks against sexism and racism the question of the animal has lagged behind developments in broader society with regard to animal suffering in factory farming product testing and laboratory experimentation as well in zoos rodeos circuses and public aquariums The contributors to Animal Subjects are scholars and writers from diverse perspectives whose work calls into question the boundaries that divide the animal kingdom from humanity focusing on the medical biological cultural philosophical and ethical concerns between non human animals and ourselves The first of its kind to feature the work of Canadian scholars and writers in this emergent field this collection aims to include the non human animal question as part of the ethical purview of Cultural Studies and to explore the question in interdisciplinary terms

Handbook of British Romanticism Ralf Haekel, 2017-09-11 The Handbook of British Romanticism is a state of the art investigation of Romantic literature and theory a field that probably changed more quickly and more fundamentally than any other traditional era in literary studies Since the early 1980s Romantic studies has widened its scope significantly The canon has been expanded hitherto ignored genres have been investigated and new topics of research explored After these profound changes intensified by the general crisis of literary theory since the turn of the millennium traditional concepts such as subjectivity imagination and the creative genius have lost their status as paradigms defining Romanticism The handbook will feature discussions of key concepts such as history class gender science and the use of media as well as a thorough account of the most central literary genres around the turn of the 19th century The focus of the book however will lie on a discussion of key literary texts in the light of the most recent theoretical developments Thus the Handbook of British Romanticism will provide students with an introduction to Romantic literature in general and literary scholars with a discussion of innovative and groundbreaking theoretical developments

Landscape With Figures Kent C. Ryden, 2009-05-07 Kent Ryden does not deny that the natural landscape of New England is shaped by many centuries of human manipulation but he also takes the view that nature is everywhere close to home as well as in more remote wilderness in the city and in the countryside In Landscape with Figures he dissolves the border between culture and nature to merge ideas about nature experiences in nature and material alterations of nature Ryden takes his readers from the printed page directly to the field and back again He often bypasses books and goes to the trees from which they are made and the landscapes they evoke then returns with a renewed appreciation for just what an interdisciplinary historically informed approach can bring to our understanding of the natural world By exploring McPhee's The Pine Barrens and Ehrlich's The Solace of Open Spaces the coastal fiction of New England surveying and Thoreau's The Maine Woods Maine's abandoned Cumberland and Oxford Canal and the natural bases for New England's historical identity Ryden demonstrates again and again that nature and history are kaleidoscopically linked
