Extinct Languages:

Encyclopedia of the World's Endangered Languages Christopher Moseley, 2008-03-10 The concern for the fast disappearing language stocks of the world has arisen particularly in the past decade as a result of the impact of globalization This book appears as an answer to a felt need to catalogue and describe those languages making up the vast majority of the world's six thousand or more distinct tongues which are in danger of disappearing within the next few decades Endangerment is a complex issue and the reasons why so many of the world's smaller less empowered languages are not being passed on to future generations today are discussed in the book's introduction The introduction is followed by regional sections each authored by a notable specialist combining to provide a comprehensive listing of every language which by the criteria of endangerment set out in the introduction is likely to disappear within the next few decades These languages make up ninety per cent of the world's remaining language stocks Each regional section comprises an introduction that deals with problems of language preservation peculiar to the area surveys of known extinct languages and problems of classification The introduction is followed by a list of all known languages within the region endangered or not arranged by genetic affiliation with endangered and extinct languages marked This listing is followed by entries in alphabetical order covering each language listed as endangered Useful maps are provided to pinpoint the more complex clusters of smaller languages in every region of the world The Encyclopedia therefore provides in a single resource expert analysis of the current language policy situation in every multilingual country and on every continent detailed descriptions of little known languages from all over the world and clear alphabetical entries region by region of all the world's languages currently thought to be in danger of extinction The Encyclopedia of the World's Endangered Languages will be a necessary addition to all academic linguistics collections and will be a useful resource for a range of readers with an interest in development studies cultural heritage and international affairs

Extinct Languages Johannes Friedrich, 2021-10-26 A noted linguist examines extinct languages from Egyptian hieroglyphs to the mysteries of as yet undeciphered writings in this scholarly work While certain ancient languages were passed down continuously through the ages many others were ignored for centuries When scholars began to decipher these extinct languages in the early nineteenth century they uncovered previously inaccessible riches of knowledge and history Yet much work remains to be done on undeciphered scripts that continue to tantalize and perplex us today In Extinct Languages linguist Johannes Friedrich guides readers through the fascinating world of recovered systems of writing including Egyptian and Hittite hieroglyphs Babylonian cuneiform and others He also explains the methodology and principles behind the deciphering process that will one day crack ancient mysteries such as the Indus Valley script

One Thousand Languages Peter Austin, 2008 Presents an overview of the living endangered and extinct languages of the world providing the total number of speakers of the language its history and maps of the geographic areas where it is presently spoken or where it was spoken in the past and anthropologists that the majority of languages spoken now around the globe will likely disappear within our lifetime. The phenomenon known as language death has started to accelerate as the world has grown smaller. This extinction of languages and the knowledge therein has no parallel in human history. K. David Harrison's book is the first to focus on the essential question: what is lost when a language dies? What forms of knowledge are embedded in a language's structure and vocabulary? And how harmful is it to humanity that such knowledge is lost forever? Harrison spans the globe from Siberia to North America to the Himalayas and elsewhere to look at the human knowledge that is slowly being lost as the languages that express it fade from sight. He uses fascinating anecdotes and portraits of some of these languages' last remaining speakers in order to demonstrate that this knowledge about ourselves and the world is inherently precious and once gone will be lost forever. This knowledge is not only our cultural heritage—oral histories, poetry, stories, etc.—but very useful knowledge about plants, animals, the seasons, and other aspects of the natural world, not to mention our understanding of the capacities of the human mind. Harrison's book is a testament not only to the pressing issue of language death but to the remarkable span of human knowledge and ingenuity. It will fascinate linguists, anthropologists, and general readers.

Cataloguing the World's Endangered Languages Lyle Campbell, Anna Belew, 2018-02-02. Cataloguing the World's Endangered Languages brings together the results of the extensive and influential Catalogue of Endangered Languages (ELCat) project. Based on the findings from the most extensive endangered languages research project, this is the most comprehensive source of accurate information on endangered languages. The book presents the academic and scientific findings that underpin the online Catalogue located at www.endangeredlanguages.com, making it an essential companion to the website for academics and researchers working in this area. While the online Catalogue displays much data from the ELCat project, this volume develops and emphasizes aspects of the research behind the data and includes topics of great interest in the field not previously covered in a single volume. Cataloguing the World's Endangered Languages is an important volume of particular interest to academics and researchers working with endangered languages.

Language Endangerment is an Important Issue Corinna Colette Vellnagel, 2011-07-11. Essay from the year 2011 in the subject Speech Science / Linguistics, grade Excellent. The University of Surrey language English abstract: Tarn palk enim ab uo tund. Only a handful of people are still able to understand these Livonian words. Viitso 1990: Reasons why languages such as Livonian are becoming extinct are manifold and the estimated 7000 languages which are being spoken around the world (Colls 2009: p. 1) are expected to rapidly shrink in the upcoming decades. It is obvious that language extinction and language death have reached an exceptional level in recent years and that the forecast for a striking percentage of the world's dying languages is very high (Hale et al. 1992). An untold number of languages has already died and the disappearance of languages continues (Wurm 1991: p. 1) constantly. One reason for this loss is the fact that more and more people switch to one of the dominant languages, especially English (Deterding 2004: p. 27), in consequence miss out on transmitting their endangered indigenous language to their descendants (Crystal 2000).

The problem of language death has only been discovered in the late 1980 s and it is assumed that within this century 50% of the currently spoken languages will become extinct and that another 40% will be endangered so that their extinction is no longer ne avoidable but only if this trend continues Krauss 1992 Although this estimation might sound very pessimistic it is obvious that a drastic reduction of language diversity is on its way In these premises thoughts about how to countervail the reduction of diversity have come up within the last couple of years Hale et al 1992 Bobaljik et al 1996 Grenoble and Whaley 1998 with one possibility being to respond to the dying of languages by extensively documenting endangered languages before they actually become extinct Considering the extent and the speed in which languages die out the task to document is particularly imperative

Foundation for Endangered Languages. Conference,Joan A. Argenter,R. McKenna Brown,2004-01-01 Africa's Endangered Languages Jason Kandybowicz,Harold Torrence,2017-07-10 Relatively little is known about Africa's endangered languages Unlike indigenous languages in Australia North Asia and the Americas which are predominantly threatened by colonizers

African languages are threatened most immediately by other local languages. As a result, the threat of language extinction is perceived as lower in Africa than in other parts of the globe, and a disproportionate amount of research is devoted to the study of endangered African languages when compared to any other linguistically threatened region in the world. There are approximately 308 highly endangered languages spoken in Africa, roughly 12% of all African languages, and at least 201 extinct African languages. This volume hopes to illuminate and challenge this trend. Chapters offer both documentary and theoretical perspectives, emphasizing the symbiotic relationship between the two approaches and its implications for the preservation of endangered languages both in the African context and more broadly. Documentary-oriented chapters deal with key issues in African language documentation, including language preservation and revitalization, community activism, and data collection and dissemination methodologies, among others. Theoretically oriented chapters provide detailed descriptions and analyses of phonetic, phonological, morphological, syntactic, and semantic phenomena and connect these to current theoretical issues and debates. Africa's Endangered Languages provides thorough coverage of a continent's neglected languages that will spur linguists and Africanists alike to work to protect them.
