Language and literature teaching are a keystone in the age of STEM especially when dealing with minority communities Practical methodologies for language learning are essential for bridging the cultural gap Teaching Language and Literature On and Off Canon is a critical research publication that provides a multidisciplinary multimodal and heterogenous perspectives on the applications of language learning and teaching practices for commonly studied languages such as Spanish English and French and less studied languages such as Latin Gaelic and ancient Semitic languages Highlighting topics such as language acquisition artistic literature and minority languages this book is essential for language teachers linguists academicians curriculum designers policymakers administrators researchers and students Interfaces José Eugenio Borao Mateo,José E. Borao Mateo Vassilis Vagios □ Hungdah Su, Hans Werner Hess, Aleksandar Pavković □ □,2012-01-01 Partly due to the European Union s insistent and successful policies on pluriculturalism and plurilinguism there have recently been voices challenging the prevalent and practical consensus in East Asian educational policies that saw

English as the only tool for international communication Their argument emphasizes that when dealing with countries that are sellers of goods and services knowledge of the languages and cultures of prospective customers is essential They also acknowledge the strong correlation between economic and political power and the extensive study of foreign languages This book takes a stand on important aspects of this multifaceted argument The first part addresses the meaning of European Studies an issue of great relevance now that Europe in sharp contrast to East Asia is experiencing a severe economic recession The second part presents formulas that have been employed by institutions in East Asia in attempting to satisfy the needs of students and scholars for advanced knowledge of European languages as they strive for answers to their research questions on Europe The final part deals with the difficult issue of linking the syllabuses of European Studies and foreign languages The consensus that emerges from the scholars contributing to this book points towards rejecting the addition of large scale resources for the creation of successful programs in outstanding universities Instead it seems preferable to maximize existing resources by creating conditions that allow ad hoc cross campus cooperation and foster mobility of students through exchange programs so that they can have their own European experience
