Arribada Estela González, 2022-05-10 Mariana Sanchez Celis has traveled the world as a pianist trained at the Juilliard School of Music But when her mother has a stroke and her beloved uncle suddenly disappears Mariana must put her life on hold to return to her home in Ayotlan Mexico She soon discovers her town is no longer the place she remembers Ayotlan's beaches sea turtle colonies and historic center are decimated under decades of neglect and abuse What part did her late father have in this And could it be related to her uncle's disappearance When Fernanda Lucero a member of the indigenous Concac people convinces Mariana to join her sea turtle and architectural conservation projects the deepening love between Mariana and Fernanda threatens to put them both further in harm's way This together with the web of secrets Mariana unravels stands to radically transform her and her family's fate Arribada is the story of a well-to-do woman pushed to confront her role in environmental and social injustice It is the saga of a family faced with the realization that their comfortable position rests beyond a strong work ethic on crimes against what they hold dearest the natural world their town and their loved ones Sunrise Sylvia Story, 1991 Set in the Melbourne and Sydney of the 1930s a story of two families three generations and a colourful assortment of friends Awarded the Random Century and New Idea Finalist Fiction Prize

Broken 2 Caitlin Lindula, 2019-04-03 This is a sequel of my first book entitled Broken It has a wonderfully flowing story line from the first book to the second New family members come into the picture and a new home is made Midnight is the daughter of Dial and Pepper whom we met in the first book Well she now has a family of her own Read just how their crazy fun-filled life is turning out and what happens in their family when plans are made Adventures love drama and vampires what more could a fiction reader want Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen's Magazine, 1953 The River You Touch Chris Dombrowski, 2022-10-11 We are matter and long to be received by an Earth that conceived us which accepts and reconstitutes us its children each of us without exception every one The journey is long and then we start homeward fathomless as to what home might make of us from The River You Touch When Chris Dombrowski burst onto the literary scene with Body of Water the book was acclaimed as a classic Jim Harrison and its author compared with John McPhee Dombrowski begins the highly anticipated All of It Everywhere with a question as timely as it is profound What does a meaningful mindful sustainable inhabitation on this small planet look like in the anthropocene He answers this fundamental question of our time initially by listening lovingly to rivers and the land they pulse through in his adopted home of Montana Transplants from the post industrial Midwest he and his partner Mary assemble a life based precariously on her income as a schoolteacher his as a poet and fly fishing guide Before long their first child arrives followed soon after by two more all free beings in whom flourishes an essential kind of knowing whose capacity for wonder may be the beacon by which we see ourselves through this dark epoch And around the young family circles a community of friends river rafting guides and conservationists climbers and wildlife biologists who seek to cultivate a way of living in place that moves beyond the mythologized West of appropriation and extraction Moving seamlessly from the quotidian diapers the mortgage a threadbare bank account to the metaphysical time memory how to live a life of integrity Dombrowski illuminates the experience of fatherhood with intimacy and grace Spending time in wild places with their children he learns that their youthful sense of wonder at the beauty and connectivity of the more than human world is not naivete to be shed but rather wisdom most of us lose along the way wisdom that is essential for the possibility of transformation
