Guardian ,1859 Labor's Love Lost Andrew J. Cherlin,2014-12-04 Two generations ago young men and women with only a high school degree would have entered the plentiful industrial occupations which then sustained the middle class ideal of a male breadwinner family Such jobs have all but vanished over the past forty years and in their absence ever growing numbers of young adults now hold precarious low paid jobs with few fringe benefits Facing such insecure economic prospects less educated young adults are increasingly forgoing marriage and are having children within unstable cohabiting relationships This has created a large marriage gap between them and their more affluent college educated peers In Labor s Love Lost noted sociologist Andrew Cherlin offers a new historical assessment of the rise and fall of working class families in America demonstrating how momentous social and economic transformations have contributed to the collapse of this once stable social class and what this seismic cultural shift means for the nation s future Drawing from more than a hundred years of census data Cherlin documents how today s marriage gap mirrors that of the Gilded Age of the late nineteenth century a time of high inequality much like our own Cherlin demonstrates that the widespread prosperity of working class families in the mid twentieth century when both income inequality and the marriage gap were low is the true outlier in the history of the American family In fact changes in the economy culture and family formation in recent decades have been so great that Cherlin suggests that the working class family pattern has largely disappeared Labor s Love Lost shows that the primary problem of the fall of the working class family from its mid twentieth century peak is not that the male breadwinner family has declined but that nothing stable has replaced it The breakdown of a stable family structure has serious consequences for low income families particularly for children many of whom underperform in school thereby reducing their future employment prospects and perpetuating an intergenerational cycle of economic disadvantage To address this disparity Cherlin recommends policies to foster educational opportunities for children and adolescents from disadvantaged families He also stresses the need for labor market interventions such as subsidizing low wages through tax credits and raising the minimum wage Labor s Love Lost provides a compelling analysis of the historical dynamics and ramifications of the growing number of young adults disconnected from steady decent paying jobs and from marriage Cherlin's investigation of today's would be working class shines a much needed spotlight on the struggling middle of our society in today's new Gilded Age

Going to the Countryside Yu Zhang, 2020-03-03 Since the beginning of the twentieth century modern Chinese intellectuals reformers revolutionaries leftist journalists and idealistic youth had often crossed the increasing gap between the city and the countryside which made the act of going to the countryside a distinctively modern experience and a continuous practice in China Such a spatial crossing eventually culminated in the socialist state program of down to the villages movements during the 1960s and 1970s What then was the special significance of going to the countryside before that era Going to the Countryside deals with the cultural representations and practices of this practice between 1915 and 1965 focusing on individual homecoming rural reconstruction revolutionary journeys to Yan'an the revolutionary going down to the people as well as going to the frontiers and rural hometowns for socialist construction As part of the larger discourses of enlightenment revolution and socialist industrialization going to the countryside entailed new ways of looking at the world and ordinary people brought about new experiences of space and time initiated new means of human communication and interaction generated new forms of cultural production revealed a fundamental epistemic shift in modern China and ultimately created a new aesthetic social and political landscape As a critical response to the urban turn in the past few decades this book brings the rural back to the central concern of Chinese cultural studies and aims to bridge the city and the countryside as two types of important geographical entities which have often remained as disparate scholarly subjects of inquiry in the current state of China studies Chinese modernity has been characterized by a dual process that created problems from the vast gap between the city and the countryside but simultaneously initiated constant efforts to cope with the gap personally collectively and institutionally The process of crossing two distinct geographical spaces was often presented as continuous explorations of various ways of establishing the connectivity interaction and relationship of these two imagined geographical entities Going to the Countryside argues that this new body of cultural productions did not merely turn the rural into a constantly changing representational space most importantly the rural has been constructed as a distinct modern experiential and aesthetic realm characterized by revolutionary changes in human conceptions and sentiments

Richard III ; Love's labor's lost William Shakespeare, 1901 American Book Prices Current, 1925 A record of literary properties sold at auction in the United States The Notable Library of Major W. Van R. Whitall, of Pelham, New York William Van R. Whitall, American Art Association, 1927 The Library of John Quinn John Quinn, 1923 Sale American Art Association, Anderson Galleries (Firm), 1923 The Inscription of Things Thomas Kelly, 2023-11-14 Why would an inkstone have a poem inscribed on it Early modern Chinese writers did not limit themselves to working with brushes and ink and their texts were not confined to woodblock printed books or the boundaries of the paper page Poets carved lines of verse onto cups ladles animal horns seashells walking sticks boxes fans daggers teapots and musical instruments Calligraphers left messages on the implements ordinarily used for writing on paper These inscriptions terse compositions in verse or epigrammatic prose relate in complex ways to the objects on which they are written Thomas Kelly develops a new account of the relationship between Chinese literature and material culture by examining inscribed objects from the late Ming and early to mid Qing dynasties He considers how the literary qualities of inscriptions interact with the visual and physical properties of the things that bear them Kelly argues that inscribing an object became a means for authors to grapple with the materiality and technologies of writing Facing profound social upheavals from volatility in the marketplace to the violence of dynastic transition writers turned to inscriptions to reflect on their investments in and dependence on the permanence of the written word Shedding new light on cultures of writing in early modern China The Inscription of Things broadens understandings of the links between the literary and the material
