Ethical Empire? Zak Leonard, 2023-10-19 This study centers upon the abolitionists Quakers free traders disenchanted colonial agents and Parsi intellectuals who participated in the British India Society India Reform Society and East India Association Beginning in the 1830s these agitators increasingly recognized that British dominion in India was exploitative and destabilizing moreover it had given rise to a series of prejudicial anomalies Reformers therefore denounced the virtual enslavement infrastructural decay violations of the law of nations and economic impoverishment that had occurred under colonial rule as well as the metropole's inattention to Indian affairs. By reconstructing the transregional networks that extended from Boston to Bengal and sustained these organizations, Zak Leonard analyzes India reformism from ideological and structural perspectives. In so doing, he historicizes the practice of anti-colonial critique and offers new insight into the frustrated development of a British imperial public consciousness.
