Ethnologue Barbara F. Grimes, Richard Saunders Pittman, Joseph Evans Grimes, 1996 Publications of the Summer Institute of Linguistics Summer Institute of Linguistics (Dallas, Tex.), 1993 Syllable Weight Matthew Gordon, 2007-05-07 The book is the first systematic exploration of a series of phonological phenomena previously thought to be unified under the rubric of syllable weight Drawing on a typological survey of 400 languages it is shown that the traditional conception that languages are internally consistent in their weight criteria across weight based processes is not corroborated by the cross linguistic survey Rather than being consistent across phenomena within individual languages weight turns out to be sensitive to the particular processes involved such that different phenomena display different distributions in weight criteria The book goes on to explore the motivations behind the process specific nature of weight showing that phonetic factors explain much of the variation in weight criteria between phenomena and also the variation in criteria between languages for a single process The book is unlike other studies in combining an extensive typological survey with detailed phonetic analysis of many languages The finding that the widely studied phenomenon of syllable weight is not a unified phenomenon contrary to the established view is a significant result for the field of theoretical phonology The book is also an important contribution to the field of phonetically driven phonology since it establishes a close link between the phonology of weight and various quantitative phonetic parameters Ethnologue Joseph Evans Grimes, Barbara F. Ethnic Chinese Networks in International Trade James E. Rauch, Vitor Trindade, 1999 Ethnic Chinese networks as proxied by the product of ethnic Chinese population shares are found in 1980 and 1990 to have increased bilateral trade both within Southeast Asia and for other country pairs Their effects within Southeast Asia are much greater for differentiated than for homogeneous products while for other country pairs their effects are neither economically nor statistically significantly different across commodity groups We interpret these and other complementary findings as showing that 1 where ethnic Chinese communities are relatively large fractions of their countries populations and have relatively numerous direct connections across international borders they facilitate international trade primarily by helping to match international buyers and sellers in characteristics space and 2 ethnic Chinese communities that are small fractions of their countries populations are close knit and facilitate international trade mainly by enforcing community sanctions that deter opportunistic behavior The smallest estimated increase in bilateral trade in differentiated products within Southeast Asia attributable to ethnic Chinese networks exceeds 150 percent suggesting that the informal trade barriers these networks help to overcome are economically important
