Environment, Ethics, and Behavior Max H. Bazerman, 1997 In this collection of essays leading social cognitive and decision psychologists offer psychological theory and contemporary environmental and ethical issues Environment, Ethics, and Behavior Max H. Bazerman, 1997 In this collection of essays leading social cognitive and decision psychologists offer psychological theory and contemporary environmental and ethical issues New Directions in Anthropology and Environment Carole L. Crumley, 2002-05-09 Carole L. Crumley has brought together top scholars from across anthropology in a benchmark volume that displays the range of exciting new work on the complex relationship between humans and the environment. Continually pursuing anthropology's persistent claim that both the physical and the mental world matter, these environmental scholars proceed from the holistic assumption that the physical world and human societies are always inextricably linked. As they incorporate diverse forms of knowledge, their work reaches beyond anthropology to bridge the sciences, social sciences, and the humanities, and to forge working relationships with non-academic communities and professionals. Theoretical issues such as the cultural dimensions of context, knowledge, and power are articulated alongside practical discussions of building partnerships, research methods, and ethics, and strategies for implementing policy. New Directions in Environment and Anthropology will be important for all scholars and non-academics interested in the relation between our species and its biotic and built environments. It is also designed for classroom use, and in and beyond anthropology, and students will be greatly assisted by suggested reading lists for their further exploration of general concepts and specific research. Justification John T. Jost, 2020-07-14 A leading psychologist explains why nearly all of us including many of those who are persecuted and powerless so often defend the social systems that cause misery and injustice Why do we so often defend the very social systems that are responsible for injustice and exploitation In A Theory of System Justification John Jost argues that we are motivated to defend the status quo because doing so serves fundamental psychological needs for certainty security and social acceptance We want to feel good not only about ourselves and the groups to which we belong but also about the overarching social structure in which we live even when it hurts others and ourselves Jost lays out the wide range of evidence for his groundbreaking theory and examines its implications for our communities and our democracy Drawing on twenty five years of research he provides an accessible account of system justification theory and its insights System justification helps to explain deep contradictions including the feeling among some women that they don't deserve the same salaries as men and the tendency of some poor people to vote for policies that increase economic inequality The theory illuminates the most pressing social and political issues of our time why has it been so hard to combat anthropogenic climate change as well as some of the most intimate why do some black children prefer white dolls to black ones and why do some people stay in bad relationships Jost's theory has far reaching implications and he offers numerous insights that political activists and social justice advocates can use to promote change Environmental Management Michael V.
