in order to address pressing questions both about the nature of contemporary generational divisions as well as the complex ways in which members of different generations are and can be involved in each other's lives. These questions include how do particular kinds of spaces and spatial arrangements e.g. cities, neighbourhoods, institutions, leisure sites facilitate and limit intergenerational contact and encounters? What processes and spaces influence the intergenerational negotiation and contestation of values, beliefs and social memory producing patterns of both continuity and change? And if generational separation and segregation are in fact significant social problems across a range of contexts, as a significant body of research and commentary attests, how can this be ameliorated? The chapters in this collection make original contributions to these debates drawing on original research from Belgium, China, Finland, Poland, Senegal, Singapore, Tanzania, Uganda, the United States and the United Kingdom.

Are you ready for the next level?" Quotes and Reviews Tyrese wholeheartedly shares his life experiences and how he discovered a new road map of conscious compassion and love to define his true potential. And in the recent years, as we've become friends, I've witnessed Tyrese Gibson learn how to get out of his own way as he wrestled his destiny from the fickle hands of fate." Will Smith

Upton, 2016-08-12 This book draws upon ethnographic and qualitative research in the United States to demonstrate the means through which long haul truck drivers navigate work and family tensions in ways that resonate across categories of race class gender and religion It examines how Christianity and constructions of masculinity are significant in the lives of long haul drivers and how truckers work to construct narratives of their lives as good moral individuals in contrast to competing cultural narratives which suggest images of romantic rule free renegade lives on the open road Based upon ethnographic fieldwork interviews observations of long haul truckers and participation in a CDL school this rich ethnography highlights how Christian trucking opportunities provide avenues through which balance is struck between work and family masculinity and other identities Embedded in larger social discourse about the meaning of masculinity and similar to evangelical perspectives such as those of the Promise Keepers Christian truckers often draw upon older ideas about responsible breadwinning fatherhood in their discourse about being good fathers while on the road This discourse is in some conflict with the lived experiences of Christian truckers who simultaneously find themselves confronted by more contemporary cultural narratives of the work family balance and expectations of what it means to be a good worker or a good trucker The book offers new insight in the field of work and family studies and an extremely relevant voice in the broader contemporary discourse in the United States on the meaning of fatherhood and religion in the 21st century You Can't Make This Stuff Up!
