Landscapes Of Power And Identity:

Landscapes of Power and Identity Cynthia Radding, 2006-01-18 Landscapes of Power and Identity is a groundbreaking comparative history of two colonies on the frontiers of the Spanish empire the Sonora region of northwestern Mexico and the Chiquitos region of eastern Bolivia's lowlands from the late colonial period through the middle of the nineteenth century An innovative combination of environmental and cultural history this book reflects Cynthia Radding's more than two decades of research on Mexico and Bolivia and her consideration of the relationships between human societies and the geographic landscapes they inhabit and create At first glance Sonora and Chiquitos are quite different one a scrub covered desert the other a tropical rainforest of the greater Amazonian and Paraguayan river basins Yet the regions are similar in many ways Both were located far from the centers of colonial authority organized into Jesuit missions and linked to the principal mining centers of New Spain and the Andes and then absorbed into nation states in the nineteenth century In each area the indigenous communities encountered European governors missionaries slave hunters merchants miners and ranchers Radding's comparative approach illuminates what happened when similar institutions of imperial governance commerce and religion were planted in different physical and cultural environments She draws on archival documents published reports by missionaries and travelers and previous histories as well as ecological studies and ethnographies She also considers cultural artifacts including archaeological remains architecture liturgical music and religious dances Radding demonstrates how colonial encounters were conditioned by both the local landscape and cultural expectations how the colonizers and colonized understood notions of territory and property how religion formed the cultural practices and historical memories of the Sonoran and Chiquitano peoples and how the conflict between the indigenous communities and the surrounding creole societies developed in new directions well into the nineteenth century

Power, Affect, and Identity in the Linguistic Landscape Xiaofang Yao, 2024-12-13 Uncovering the complexity of linguistic diversity and semiotic creativity this book examines the issues of power affect and identity in both physical and digital linguistic landscapes Based on fieldwork with various Chinese communities in Australia the book offers unique insights into the uses of languages semiotic resources and material objects in public spaces and discusses the motives and ideologies that underline these linguistic and semiotic practices Each chapter frames the sociolinguistic issue emerging from the linguistic landscape under investigation and shows readers how the personal trajectories of individuals the availability of semiotic resources and the historicity of spaces collectively shape the meanings of publicly displayed language items in offline and online spaces Supported by a wealth of interviews media and archival data the book not only advances readers understanding of how linguistic landscape is structured by various historical political and sociocultural factors but also enables them to reimagine the linguistic landscape through the lens of emerging digital methods This book is an ideal resource for researchers advanced undergraduates and graduate students of applied linguistics and sociolinguistics who are interested in the latest advances in linguistic landscape research within virtual and material contexts      Landscapes of Power Dana E. Powell, 2018-01-05 In Landscapes of Power Dana E Powell examines the rise and fall of the controversial Desert Rock Power Plant initiative in New Mexico to trace the political conflicts surrounding native sovereignty and contemporary energy development on Navajo Din Nation land Powell's historical and ethnographic account shows how the coal fired power plant project's defeat provided the basis for redefining the legacies of colonialism mineral extraction and environmentalism Examining the labor of activists artists politicians elders technicians and others Powell emphasizes the generative potential of Navajo resistance to articulate a vision of autonomy in the face of twenty first century colonial conditions Ultimately Powell situates local Navajo struggles over energy technology and infrastructure within broader sociocultural life debates over global climate change and tribal federal and global politics of extraction      Landscape and Power, Second Edition William John Thomas Mitchell, W. J. T. Mitchell, 2002-04-15 This text considers landscape not simply as an object to be seen or a text to be read but as an instrument of cultural force a central tool in the creation of national and social identities This edition adds a new preface and five new essays

Landscapes, Identities and Development Zoran Roca, Paul Claval, John Agnew, 2016-12-05 Bringing together theoretical and empirical research from 22 countries in Europe North America Australia South America and Japan this book offers a state of the art survey of conceptual and methodological research and planning issues relating to landscape heritage and development It has 30 chapters grouped in four main thematic sections landscapes as a constitutive dimension of territorial identities landscape history and landscape heritage landscapes as development assets and resources and landscape research and development planning The contributors are scholars from a wide range of cultural and professional backgrounds experienced in fundamental and applied research planning and policy design They were invited by the co editors to write chapters for this book on the basis of the theoretical frameworks case study research findings and related policy concerns they presented at the 23rd Session of PECSRL The Permanent European Conference for the Study of the Rural Landscape organized by TERCUD Territory Culture and Development Research Centre Universidade Lus fona in Lisbon and bidos Portugal 1 5 September 2008 With such broad inter disciplinary relevance and international scope this book provides a valuable overview highlighting recent findings and interpretations on historical current and prospective linkages between changing landscapes and natural economic cultural and other identity features of places and regions landscape related identities as local and regional development assets and resources in the era of globalized economy and culture the role of landscape history and heritage as platforms of landscape research and management in European contexts including the implementation of The European Landscape Convention and the strengthening of the landscape perspective as a constitutive element of sustainable development      Landscape and Power in Geographical Space as a Social-Aesthetic Construct Olaf Kühne, 2018-02-13 This book examines the power definiteness of landscape from a social constructivist perspective with a particular focus on the importance of aesthetic concepts of landscape in development It seeks to answer the question of how societal notions of landscape emerge how they are individually updated and how these ideas affect the use and design of physical space It also analyzes how physical manifestations of societal activity impact on understandings of individual and societal landscapes and addresses the essential aspect of the social construction of landscape cultural specificity which in turn is discussed in the context of the expansion of a western landscape concept The book offers an unprecedented comprehensive and detailed examination of societal power relations in the context of landscape development The numerous case studies from the physical manifestation of modern spatial planning in the United States the power discourses concerning the design of model railway landscapes and the medial production of stereotypical landscape notions shed light on the complex and multilayered interactions of collective and individual landscape references It is a valuable resource for geographers sociologists landscape architects landscape planners and philosophers

The Linguistic Landscape In Israel Through Palestinian Eyes Rawia Hayik, 2025-07-24 This book uses a sociolinguistic framework to explore how language serves as a marker of national identity in conflict zones focusing on the dystopian representation of Arabic as a minority language in Israel through the perspectives of Israeli Palestinian students Using a documentary photography research tool PhotoVoice minoritized college students from Northern Israel were invited to document and reflect on the signage in their area Content analysis of students reflections revealed not only a problematic linguistic reality in which the presence of Arabic was limited and inaccurate but also their experience of the space as local inhabitants The book chapters shed light on their profound perceptions and aspirations as passers by toward the misrepresentation of their native language in the country The contribution of the book lies in demonstrating the potential of the innovative tool PhotoVoice in developing awareness of the explicit and implicit messages delivered through linguistic landscapes It encourages action for achieving utopian more inclusive linguistic realities where minority languages are appropriately represented

An Introduction to Political Geography Martin Jones, Rhys Jones, Michael Woods, 2004 An Introduction to Political Geography provides a broad based introduction to how power interacts with space how place influences political identities and how policy creates and remoulds territory By pushing back the boundaries of what we conventionally understand as political geography the book emphasizes the interactions between power politics and policy space place and territory in different geographical contexts This is both an essential text for political geographers and also a valuable resource for students of related fields with an interest in politics and geography

Imperialism, Power, and Identity David J. Mattingly, 2013-12-05 Despite what history has taught us about imperialism's destructive effects on colonial societies many classicists continue to emphasize disproportionately the civilizing and assimilative nature of the Roman Empire and to hold a generally favorable view of Rome's impact on its subject peoples Imperialism, Power, and Identity boldly challenges this view using insights from postcolonial studies of modern empires to offer a more nuanced understanding of Roman imperialism Rejecting outdated notions about Romanization David Mattingly focuses instead on the concept of identity to reveal a Roman society made up of far flung populations whose experience of empire varied enormously He examines the nature of power in Rome and the means by which the Roman state exploited the natural mercantile and human resources within its frontiers Mattingly draws on his own archaeological work in Britain Jordan and North Africa and covers a broad range of topics including sexual relations and violence census taking and taxation mining and pollution land and labor and art and iconography He shows how the lives of those under Rome's dominion were challenged enhanced or destroyed by the empire's power and in doing so he redefines the meaning and significance of Rome in today's debates about globalization power and empire Imperialism Power and Identity advances a new agenda for classical studies one that views Roman rule from the perspective of the ruled and not just the rulers In a new preface Mattingly reflects on some of the reactions prompted by the initial publication of the book

Wind Power in View Martin Pasqualetti, Paul Gipe, Robert Righter, 2002-02-15 More than ever travelers are encountering a different sort of landscape one not only of nature but of technology Wind Power in View is the first authoritative discourse on the aesthetic impact of wind turbines on the landscape and what can be done about it It is a detailed and thoroughly illustrated discussion of the issue from several different perspectives The book also provides an overview of the status of wind energy at the dawn of the new millennium examines some of the ongoing battles and offers guidelines on minimizing its visual impact Taking examples from the United States Germany Denmark Great Britain and Sweden Wind Power in View is the first book to tackle the thorny land use questions raised by wind energy's hard won respectability What will be the future of wind energy Will it be welcomed as savior or will it be opposed as a new age intrusion on open space and landscape preservation These 11 essays international in nature and written by objective experts address landscape issues in creative original ways

Power and Identity at the Margins of the Ancient Near East Sara Mohr, Shane M. Thompson, 2023-09-15 Power and Identity at the Margins of the Ancient Near East rethinks the dichotomy between antiquated terms such as core and periphery explores lived realities in the margins of central authority and centers those margins as places of resistance and power in their own right The borderlands of hegemonic entities within the Near East and Egypt pressed against each other creating cities and societies with influence from several competing polities The peoples cities and cultures that resulted present a unique lens by which to examine how states controlled and influenced the lives political systems and social hierarchies of these subjects and vice versa This volume addresses the distinct traditions and experiences of areas beyond the core terminology used when discussing empire core periphery borderlands and frontiers conceptualization of space practices and consequences of warfare captive taking and slavery identity and secondary state formation economy and society ritual diplomacy and the negotiation of claims to power It is imperative that historians and social scientists understand the ways in which these cultures developed spread and interacted with others along frontier edges Using an intersectional approach across disciplines Power and Identity at the Margins of the Ancient Near East brings together professionals from archaeology religious studies history sociology and anthropology to make new contributions to the study of the frontier Contributors Alexander Ahrens Peter Dubovsk Avraham Faust Daniel E Fleming Mahri Leonard Fleckman Alvise Matessi Ellen Morris Valeria Turriziani Eric M Trink

Mining the Landscape Geraldine Mate, 2022-09-12 Mining was one of the primary elements of colonial enterprise in Australia and a factor in movement on colonial frontiers In the second half of the 19th and early 20th century mining particularly of gold saw transformations of the land itself as well as in the way that people working in mining engaged with the landscape around them Landscape archaeology provides a theoretical perspective that allows an articulation of how people created and understood the place in which they lived and worked The impact of and narrative surrounding gold mining has meant that it has long been a focus of study both historical and archaeological The archaeology of mining has traditionally fallen under the umbrella of industrial archaeology with analyses based on historical economic and technological evidence However this is changing From an industrial focus examining the remnants of mines and associated processing equipment archaeology has progressed towards understandings of the social aspects of mining recognising that people not just equipment occupied these landscapes Nevertheless there remains a separation between industrial technology based studies and purely social household based archaeological studies a division that overlooks the integration of home and livelihood This work addresses these very challenges using a landscape based approach that articulates a nuanced meaning laden and experienced mining landscape Integrating the social and the industrial the case study of Mount Shamrock a gold mining town in Queensland Australia demonstrates how this methodology can enhance our understanding of the past The work presents an integration of social and industrial perspectives in a mining settlement and provides an exemplar in the application of landscape theory to Australian historical archaeology These concepts and approaches developed in an Australian context are of universal interest

The Archaeology and Anthropology of Landscape Robert Layton, Peter Ucko, 2003-09-02 The Archaeology and Anthropology of Landscape contributes to the development of theory in archaeology and anthropology provides new and varied case studies of landscape and environment from five continents and raises important policy issues concerning development and the management of heritage

Landscape and Identity in the Modern Basque Country, 1800 to 1936 Maitane Ostolaza, 2022-12-30 Landscape and Identity in the Modern Basque Country 1800 to 1936 studies the relationship between landscape and modern identities in the Basque Country Using an interdisciplinary approach that combines cultural history and geography it analyses the process of historical construction of the Basque landscape highlighting its multiple political social and cultural meanings The book is divided into two parts the first examines the discourses images and representations of the Basque landscape the second examines landscape practices through tourism hiking and mountaineering Focusing on the Basque case but establishing numerous connections with comparable phenomena in Western Europe the book demonstrates that the landscape became a structuring element insofar as it helped shape individual identities while participating in the creation of social links This book examines the processes of identity construction from below by means of new interpretative tools such as the experience of landscape This work originally published in French brings to an English speaking audience a crucial issue in the modern history of the Basque Country namely the cultural construction of a collective identity within the framework of a nation state such as Spain confronted with multiple territorial identities Approaching this question from the perspective of landscape provides new keys to understanding the processes of nation building that occurred in Europe in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries

Justice, Power and the Political Landscape Kenneth Olwig,Donald Mitchell,2019-07-09 Landscape is now on the agenda in a new way The increasing interest in justice power and the political landscape expresses a sea change occurring in the meaning of landscape itself from landscape as scenery to landscape as polity and place As Lionella Scazzosi argues The meaning of the term landscape has become broader than that of a view or panorama which characterized many national protection laws and policies until the middle of the 20th century and that of environment or nature to which it has often been limited during the recent years of environmentalist battles This is reflected in the new European Landscape Convention for which Landscape means an area as perceived by people The tide thus has turned towards J B Jackson s view of landscape as not a scenic or ecological entity but as a political or cultural entity changing in the course of history It is in this socio political context that it becomes necessary to consider the role of power and the importance of justice in the shaping of the landscape as an area of practice and performance with both cultural and environmental implications This book was previously published as two special issues of Landscape Research

Rhetorical Landscapes in America Gregory Clark,2021-11-24 A panoramic explanation of civic tourism and the shaping of a national identity At the same time a reading of Kenneth Burke and of tourist landscapes in America Gregory Clark's new study explores the rhetorical power connected with American tourism Looking specifically at a time when citizens of the United States first took to rail and then highway to become sightseers in their own country Clark traces the rhetorical function of a wide ranging set of tourist experiences He explores how the symbolic experiences Americans share as tourists have helped residents of a vast and diverse nation adopt a national identity In doing so he suggests that the rhetorical power of a national culture is wielded not only by public discourse but also by public experiences Clark examines places in the American landscape that have facilitated such experiences including New York City Shaker villages Yellowstone National Park the Lincoln Highway San Francisco's 1915 Panama Pacific International Exposition and the Grand Canyon He examines the rhetorical power of these sites to transform private individuals into public citizens and he evaluates a national culture that teaches Americans to experience certain places as potent symbols of national community Invoking Burke's concept of identification to explain such rhetorical encounters Clark considers Burke's lifelong study of symbols linguistic and otherwise and their place in the construction and transformation of individual identity Clark turns to Burke's work to expand our awareness of the rhetorical resources that lead individuals within a community to adopt a collective identity and he considers the implications of nineteenth and twentieth century tourism for both visual rhetoric and the rhetoric of display

African Landscapes Michael Bollig, Olaf Bubenzer, 2009-06-12 Landscape studies provide a crucial perspective into the interaction between humans and their environment shedding insight on social cultural and economic topics The research explores both the way that natural processes have affected the development of culture and society as well as the ways that natural landscapes themselves are the product of historical and cultural processes Most previous studies of the landscape selectively focused on either the natural sciences or the social sciences but the research presented in African Landscapes bridges that gap This work is unique in its interdisciplinary scope Over the past twelve years the contributors to this volume have participated in the collaborative research center ACACIA Arid Climate Adaptation and Cultural Innovation in Africa which deals with the relationship between cultural processes and ecological dynamics in Africa's arid areas The case studies presented here come from mainly Sahara Sahel and southwestern Africa and are all linked to broader discussions on the concept of landscape and themes of cultural anthropological geographical botanical sociological and archaeological interest The contributions in this work are enhanced by full color photographs that put the discussion in context visually

Archaeological Landscapes of the Near East T. J. Wilkinson, 2003-11-01 Society for American Archaeology Book Award Winner Many fundamental studies of the origins of states have built upon landscape data but an overall study of the Near Eastern landscape itself has never been attempted Spanning thousands of years of history the ancient Near East presents a bewildering range of landscapes the understanding of which can greatly enhance our ability to infer past political and social systems Tony Wilkinson now shows that throughout the Holocene humans altered the Near Eastern environment so thoroughly that the land has become a human artifact albeit one that retains the power to shape human societies In this trailblazing book the first to describe and explain the development of the Near Eastern landscape using archaeological data Wilkinson identifies specific landscape signatures for various regions and periods from the early stages of complex societies in the fifth to sixth millennium B C to the close of the Early Islamic period around the tenth century A D From Bronze Age city states to colonized steppes these signature landscapes of irrigation systems tells and other features changed through time along with changes in social economic political and environmental conditions By weaving together the record of the human landscape with evidence of settlement the environment and social and economic conditions Wilkinson provides a holistic view of the ancient Near East that complements archaeological excavations cuneiform texts and other conventional sources Through this overview culled from thirty years research Wilkinson establishes a new framework for understanding the economic and physical infrastructure of the region By describing the basic attributes of the ancient cultural landscape and placing their development within the context of a dynamic environment he breaks new ground in landscape archaeology and offers a new context for understanding the ancient Near East
