Language Adaptation:

   Language Adaptation Florian Coulmas,1989 Language Adaptation examines the process by which a speech community is forced to adopt an active role in making its language suitable for changing functional requirements This wide ranging collection of essays looks at this phenomenon from a variety of historical and synchronic perspectives and brings together the work of a number of leading scholars in the field Several different languages are examined at different stages of their history including Hebrew Arabic Chinese Japanese Kiswahili German and Hindi This well informed book is a significant contribution to the existing literature on language planning and is the first to use one theoretical concept to deal with the relationship between natural and deliberate language change It shows that language adaptation is a particular aspect of language change and thus establishes a link between the social and the historical study of language It will appeal to graduate students and professionals in linguistics and the social sciences as well as to practitioners of language planning   Human Language Technology. Challenges of the Information Society Zygmunt Vetulani,Hans Uszkoreit,2009-08-25 Half a centuryago not manypeople had realizedthat a new epoch in the history of homo sapiens had just started The term Information Society Age seems an appropriate name for this epoch Communication was without a doubt a lever of the conquest of the human race over the rest of the animate world There is little doubt that the human racebegan when our predecessorsstarted to communicate with each other using language This highly abstractmeans of communicationwas probably one of the major factors contributing to the evolutionary success of the human race within the animal world Physically weak and imperfect humans started to dominate the rest of the world through the creation of communication based societies where individuals communicated initially to satisfy immediate needs and then to create accumulate and process knowledge for future use The crucial step in the history of humanity was the invention of writing It is worth noting that writing is a human invention not a phenomenon resulting from natural evolution Humans invented writing as a technique for recording speech as well as for storing and facilitating the dissemination of knowledge across the world Humans continue to be born illiterate and therefore teaching and conscious supervised learning is necessary to maintain this basic social skill   Language Change Goparaju Sambasiva Rao,1994   Current Topics in Language ,2018-10-19 Language Volume 68 the latest release in the Psychology of Learning and Motivation features empirical and theoretical contributions in cognitive and experimental psychology ranging from classical and instrumental conditioning to complex learning and problem solving Each chapter thoughtfully integrates the writings of leading contributors with this volume presenting the latest on Perceptual Learning for Native and Non Native Speech Common representations of serial order in language and memory Neurocomputational Emergentism as a framework for language development Syntactic adaptation Neural indices of structured sentence representation state of the art A review of familial sinistrality and language Monitoring and control in language production and more Presents the latest information in the highly regarded Psychology of Learning and Motivation series Provides an essential reference for
